Hottest July 18 Recorded in City

Temperature Is 102 at 4 and Marks Record Also for Summer

The hottest July 18 in local weather history was recorded Saturday when the mercury soared to a sweltering 102 degrees.

Previous high for this date was registered last year at 95 degrees. The peak temperature Saturday was reached at 4 p. m., it was announced by the city engineer's office.

High yesterday was another hot and humid 95 degrees with a low of 71 recorded at 2:30 a. m. Today at 9:45 a. m., the temperature reading at city hall was reported to be 83.

The temperature Saturday was also the highest recorded here this summer, the city engineer's office reported.

Many Go to Cooler Spots
Local residents flocked to neighboring lakes and streams in an effort to assuage the blistering weekend heat. The Ashokan Reservoir Aeration Basin, swimming resorts and parks were filled with those seeking relief, many picnicking in the cooler stretches of the countryside.

Possible relief from oven-like temperatures of the past three days was predicted for the eastern seaboard by tomorrow morning by the New York Weather Bureau. This anticipated relief is in the form of a slow-moving cool air mass moving from the Pacific over the north and central plains.

Saturday's high eclipsed the previous high for the season recorded Friday when the mercury reached a sizzling 98 degrees.

Firefighters Race Adirondack Blaze

Outbreak in Mountains Near Ellenville Is Under Control

Long Lake, July 20 (AP)—Firefighters today raced against flames licking a mile-wide swath through the Adirondack mountain woodland in the state's largest forest fire of the season.

The outbreak, described by the State Conservation Department as "potentially the most dangerous in many years," was damped by showers last night. Rangers hoped to bring it under control today.

About 215 firefighters worked in shifts to carve a 20-foot-wide fire-break around the flames on the slopes of Seward Mountain in the central Adirondacks. The scene, along the Cold river and about 18 miles northeast of here, is about 14 miles from the house nearest it.

A Conservation Department spokesman said he was unable to estimate how much acreage had been burned since the fire began Saturday night. It was believed that lightning had touched off the flames.

St. Mary's Street Man Takes Oath; May Seek Election in Autumn

George P. Norton, Jr., of 2 St. Mary's street was appointed by Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk today to serve out the unexpired term of David Schechter as alderman of the Sixth Ward.

Schechter resigned effective June 31 when he moved from the Sixth Ward to the Third Ward.

The appointment of Norton is an indication that his name will be recommended to the enrolled Republican voters at the September primary as candidate for alderman for the next full term, beginning Jan. 1. At the time of the Republican ward caucuses, the recommendation of a candidate for alderman of the Sixth Ward was deferred.

Norton, who took his oath of office at the city clerk's office this morning, served in the army in World War 2, including service in Italy. He is married to the former Joan Enright, and they have two children. He is employed by Patrick J. Gallagher, electric motor repair firm, on Spring street. He resided in the Sixth Ward practically all his life, attended St. Mary's School and Kingston High School. A brother is serving in Korea.

PFC. Daniel M. White Served in Infantry Following Draft

Pfc. Daniel M. White of 15 DuBois street has been reported missing in action in Korea, his wife, Mrs. Marilyn White said today.

Notification of the report was received in a telegram from Maj. Gen. William E. Bergin, USA, of the Defense Department.

According to the telegram, Pfc. White, who entered service July 7, 1952, has been missing in action since July 4.

A member of an infantry division, Pfc. White has been stationed in Korea since May 14. He received his basic training at Indiantown Gap, Pa.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard White, reside on the East Chester Street Extension.

Eisenhower Faces Money Struggle With Democrats

Washington, July 20 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration comes to a financial crossroads today, its evident plans to lift the federal debt limit threatened by Democratic opposition.

In advance of a meeting of GOP leaders with President Eisenhower to discuss the situation (7:30 AEST), Sen. George (D-Ga.) said he might not go along on an expected proposal to raise the present 275-billion-dollar ceiling.

"There will be some opposition to increasing the debt limit, mainly on the ground that the only way to cut spending is to keep the present limit," George said.

He added that he personally remains to be convinced that the action has to be taken now despite the narrow margin by which the present debt ceiling is below the statutory limit.

Chairman Millikin (R-Colo.) of the Senate Finance Committee said he hasn't polled the group and doesn't know how it will stand on the issue.

Kentucky Man Is Drowning Victim At Williams Lake

Frank Edwin Lamb, 18, Goes Down in 35 Feet of Water; Rescue Attempts Fail

Frank Edwin Lamb, 18, of Lancaster, Ky., a magazine salesman, drowned at Williams Lake while he was swimming with two companions yesterday afternoon.

Coroner Michael A. Galletta said death was due to "accidental drowning."

Lamb, and his two friends, Fred Ginsler, of Ithaca, and Hirschfeld Brown, of Springfield, O., also magazine salesman, had registered at the Kirkland Hotel Sunday morning, Sgt. Arthur Reilly of the state police, and Coroner Galletta said.

Was Holding to Rope
Sgt. Reilly said Lamb had been holding onto a rope in low water at about 2:30 p. m., when he decided to join his friends out near the float. He went under water shortly after letting go of the rope.

The two friends swam to rescue him, the authorities said, "but he put up a fight," they were unable to hold him, and he went down. Frank Dipple, a lifeguard at the lake, responded quickly to the rescue call, but by the time he got there Lamb had gone down in 35 feet of water. The coroner said Lamb was not an accomplished swimmer.

Hooks Are Used
The lifeguard made efforts to reach Lamb under water, but it was finally found necessary to use grappling hooks. Artificial respiration was applied for nearly an hour after the body was brought ashore.

Coroner Galletta indicated there had been some delay in getting notice to him, and some criticism of the time it took to get there. He said he and Sgt. Reilly were at the scene 32 minutes after being called.

The body was turned over to the George J. Moylan Funeral Home, Rosendale, for shipment to Lancaster.

Jobless Rate Lower

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Unemployment in the United States last year averaged only 1,700,000, the Census Bureau reported yesterday, to reach the lowest point since World War 2. It said also that the number of working wives, about 10,400,000 in April of last year, topped the peak World War 2 year by about 529 million although the figure was unchanged from 1951.

lihood of having to seek a raise in the debt limit, secretary of the treasury Humphrey predicted yesterday that bigger business earnings and higher national income will lift government receipts to a second successive peak in the year which started July 1.

Federal revenue, Humphrey said, should climb to 68½ billion dollars compared with the record $65,200,000,000 (B) in the year which ended June 30. Nevertheless, he added, "continued vigorous cooperative effort... will be required to reduce expenditures to the point where we will obtain a balance between receipts and expenditures."

Humphrey blamed spending programs inherited from the Truman administration for the grim fiscal picture.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), in a week-end statement, estimated that government income next year would be about 64 billions—or 4½ billions less than the Humphrey estimate. He put probable spending at 74 billions and said Congress will have to raise taxes

Marines Hit By Chinese, Lose Posts

Western Points Taken at Two Positions by Enemy; Planes Blast Hilltops

Seoul, July 20 (AP)—Recklessly attacking Chinese engulfed two vital western front outposts defended by U. S. marines last night and the first leatherneck survivors staggered back to allied lines today.

In their last act before their radio went dead, the trapped marines—back in the battlelines only three weeks—called in their own artillery on top of them in a desperate effort to halt the violent onslaught.

The number of marines in the battle was not immediately released.

Fourteen leathernecks of the First Marine Division were the first known survivors of the bloody battles for outposts East Berlin and Berlin, part of a key hill area on the western front.

Fatigued and wan, they staggered back into marine lines. Eight were from outpost Berlin and six from East Berlin.

How they got out was not learned immediately.

It was assumed they worked their way down the bloodied slopes after the Reds left the hill during daylight.

May Still Be Alive

They said more marines may still be alive in the battered bunkers and shell-ripped trenches on the outposts.

The survivors described the hills as a battle-torn No Man's Land. They said no Chinese were left atop the outposts, which were plastered by savage Red and allied artillery fire during the 1,500-man Red assault.

Allied fighter-bombers and marine guns pounded the hills relentlessly, but there was no immediate move to retake them.

The Fifth Air Force said its planes—taking advantage of hot, clear weather—slammed 500,000 pounds of bombs at Communist front-lines from the Berlin outposts to the Kumsong front in the east.

Other Targets Pounded

Sabre jets in their dual role as fighter-bombers, Australian Meteor jets, and marine planes pummeled other Red targets deep in North Korea.

Meanwhile, the 8th Army said the Communists lost 6,290 killed and 1,260 wounded around the front Sunday mostly on the turbulent east-central front, where the Reds last week hurled their biggest offensive in two years.

The figure may have included some delayed reports.

A thunderous artillery barrage heralded the Reds' reckless as-

Stolen Car Found; Man, 21, Is Held

Fred Lee Whitney Awaits Grand Jury; AWOL From Navy

A car stolen from Roy Mayone of 75 Cedar street early Sunday was recovered for him by his next-door neighbor, Officer Sheldon O'Rourke of the Kingston Police Department, a couple of hours later.

O'Rourke and Officer Hydreect Armstrong were dispatched to the north end of the Rondout Creek bridge at 3:39 a. m. Sunday when headquarters received a telephone call reporting an accident at that location.

The found an arrival that a 1949 sedan had struck the bridge a glancing blow which had damaged the right fender and bumper and that another car was pushing it across the bridge to the Port Ewen side.

Whitney Is Questioned

Operator of the car, the officers learned, was Fred Lee Whitney, 21, who listed his address as the YMCA. According to the officers, Whitney told them he had borrowed the car, but O'Rourke, recognizing it as Mayone's, was suspicious and Whitney was taken to headquarters where further investigation disclosed the vehicle had been stolen.

Police said Whitney told them he was AWOL from the U. S. Navy and naval authorities were notified.

Following preliminary examination in city court this morning Judge Raymond J. Mino held Whitney for the grand jury.

Mrs. Mayone told The Freeman this morning that the car was stolen from in front of the house and that she and her husband didn't know it had been stolen until they received a call from police headquarters reporting that it had been recovered.

Car Suffers Damage

She said the car could be used but needed a new bumper, had been scratched on the side and the wheels were out of alignment.

Two Killed In Crash at Ferndale

Two persons were killed and several were injured when a car struck a bridge abutment and overturned after a collision with a trailer truck on Route 17 in the Ferndale area last night.

The dead are David Rosenberg, of 1631 Prospect Place, Brooklyn, and Max Karpell, of 126 Ludlow street, New York city.

State police said the car operated by Rosenberg had passed the trailer truck owned by Queens Farms of Deposit "in the face of oncoming traffic," and as it "cut back in" came in contact with a bumper on the truck. The car then struck the bridge abutment and turned over several times.

Second Flood Hits Japan; 273 Are Dead

Tokyo, July 20 (AP)—Thousands of Japanese were rescued today from debris-littered floodwaters as ground, sea and air teams worked feverishly to cut the human toll in the nation's second great flood disaster in three weeks.

The sudden flood that started with cloudburst rains last Friday swallowed whole villages at Wakayama on central Honshu Island's Pacific coast about 200 miles southwest of Tokyo.

National police headquarters here re-estimated the toll at 273 dead, 433 injured and 2,033 missing.

Earlier, police said more than 6,000 were dead or missing, but a spokesman reported later those totals listed many duplications caused by chaotic communications.

More Than 2,000 Rescued

More than 2,000 persons stranded on rooftops or trapped in flooded homes were plucked to safety by rescue teams searching the swirling waters.

U. S. Air Force planes crisscrossed the flood scene, dropping tons of food to stranded persons, while Japanese ships and ground forces scoured the area for survivors.

The rains stopped Sunday after two days of cloudbursts sent three mountain streams thundering down narrow valleys.

Flash floods hit valley villages—some before sleeping residents could flee.

New Rains Strike

Although skies began to clear and the rivers to recede on Central Honshu, new rains hit in the Tokyo area and the rivers there rose steadily.

Thousands worked during the night to plug gaps at river dikes with sandbags.

Mrs. Onobu Mitsuda, 50, was the only survivor of a family of five.

"We screamed and screamed for hours from the roof top as our house drifted to the ocean," she recalled.

"Then the roof broke up, and the waves swallowed by husband and daughter. A few minutes later a big log struck, and my mother and another daughter were lost."

New Paltz Man Is Heart Victim

Americo Stephen Tenedini, 35, of New Paltz, died of a heart condition last night while working under a floor with an electric drill at Mossy Brook House, which is operated by his father, Frank Tenedini, in the High Falls area.

It was first thought, authorities said, that Tenedini might have died of an electric shock, but an autopsy revealed death was due to the heart ailment.

Sgt. Arthur Reilly of the state police, and Coroner Michael Galletta, who investigated, said a sewer line in the boarding house had become plugged, and Tenedini went under the floor with the drill between 6 and 7 p. m. to loosen the stoppage.

Not Direct Cause

Coroner Galletta said a mark on his body indicated he had been burned, or possibly shocked due to the dampness under the floor near the sewer line, but, if so, this was not the direct cause of death.

The cause of death was described as a "severe heart condition." Authorities said he was dead on arrival of Dr. Anthony Tocco, of Stone Ridge, at the house.

An employee of the engineering department, of IBM, Poughkeepsie, Tenedini, is survived by his wife, Livia Zandonella Tenedini, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tenedini, two sons, Richard and Kenneth, and a sister, Mrs. Rocco Castoro.

Funeral arrangements by the George J. Moylan Funeral Home, Rosendale, will be announced.

Poughkeepsie Man Heads State Legion As Commander

Rochester, July 20 (AP)—Paul S. Samuels, of Poughkeepsie, is the new commander of the New York state department of the American Legion.

The Legion wound up its three-day annual convention here yesterday by electing Samuels to succeed Bruce Percy, of Rochester.

The new vice commanders: Edgar W. Allen, of Dansville; Albert Goff, of Port Jefferson; Martin Harr Jr., of Indian Lake; Frank La Rocco, of Yonkers; and Raymond McLaughlin, of Johnson City.

Other officers: William J. Dwyer, of Cortland, treasurer; Rev. Paul Brunet, of Altona, chaplain; Frank E. Monnin, of Penn Yan, historian; and Leo V. Lanning, of Buffalo, national executive committee man.

Auxiliary Officers

Samuels, Percy and Dwyer were elected delegates-at-large to the national convention, along with Jacob Ark, of Rochester, and Arthur F. Duffy, of Queens.

The Legion Auxiliary elected Mrs. Stanley J. Autenrieth, of New Paltz, as president; Mrs. Jesse Haley, of West Stephentown, first vice-president; Mrs. John Milbury of Mount Vernon, second vice-president, and Mrs. Leonard Miscall, of Ithaca, third vice president.

Legion officials said that for the first time in five years a resolution approved by the resolution committee was defeated on the floor of the convention. The resolution called for the veterans administration to provide the chiropractic services to veterans that desired such treatment in VA hospitals.

Two More Communists Under Kremlin Fire During Purge

Berlin, July 20 (AP)—Another top official was missing today from the higher bracket of East German communism. The Reds purged a party secretary and also censured a cabinet minister, perhaps as a prelude to firing him.

Western sources predicted even more heads would fall, this week or next, in the hunt for scapegoats to blame for the June 17 workers uprising.

The East German shakeup reflected continuing purges throughout the iron curtain countries, the latest in the Soviet Republic of Azerbaijan, where Prime Minister Mir-Djafar D. Bagirov was dismissed. Moscow radio said yesterday he had been charged with "gross bureaucratism."

In Germany, the ruling Socialist Unity (Communist) party's Politburo fired Adalbert Hengst, a party secretary, and "sharply

Fighting Is To End 12 Hours After

Reds Complete Work on Hut to Be Used for Signing—Might Come in Week

Panmunjom, July 20 (AP)—Teams of Allied and Communist officers—including for the first time the men who would oversee a cease-fire—worked in nine secret sessions today on the final details of a Korean armistice.

Two staff officer sessions were set for 10 a. m. Tuesday (8 p. m. Monday, EST).

The Reds, meanwhile, put the finishing touches on a large hut to be used for signing the historic document which would end the three years of fighting.

There was no official indication just when the armistice would be signed, but some observers said it could be within a week. Fighting would end 12 hours after the signing.

Deadlock Is Broken

A month-long deadlock in the negotiations was broken with a Communist announcement Sunday that the Reds were ready to prepare for the signing.

Three U. S. members of the military armistice commission flew here unexpectedly for the first time and met for one hour, 50 minutes with Communist members of the commission.

The commission, composed of top officers from the opposing armies, would control the buffer zone between the two forces.

The Red and allied commission members discussed "suggested arrangements which they (the Reds) will consider and probably come back with their proposal," said Navy Capt. B. M. Coleman, McLean, Va., one of the U. S. members. Another meeting was planned, but no time was given.

Optimism Heightened

The speeded tempo of Monday's sessions—running from 10 a. m. to 8:05 p. m. (6:05 a. m. EST)—heightened optimism for an early signing.

Total time spent by five different teams, including interpreters and liaison officers, was seven hours, 42 minutes.

The main truce delegations presumably are awaiting a call from the lower level staff officers to set a date for the signing.

Both sides quickened the pace toward a truce signing in the wake of the sudden Communist announcement Sunday that they were ready to go ahead with final preparations in return for allied assurances that South Korea would abide by a cease-fire.

But South Korean Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai hinted more opposition from Syngman Rhee's government might be in the wind with a statement that the Communist agreement contained "many traps."

He said it showed the Reds intended to take "all South Korea by subversive activity and by liquidating the army which we have built so painstakingly and with so much expense."

An unnamed Republic of Korea (ROK) spokesman said allied assurances meant the UN "had lost the war."

Volunteers Hold Their 18th Parade

Torrid Sun Bakes Line of March; Accident Mars Event

Volunteer firemen from all over the county marched under blazing sun Saturday afternoon as hundreds of spectators lined both sides of Albany avenue extension from Roosevelt avenue to Morton Boulevard.

As the siren at the Ulster Hose Company's firehouse sounded at exactly 2 p. m., to announce the start of the parade, the recording thermometer in its shaded box atop the city hall in Kingston stood at just a hair under 102 degrees—the hottest day so far this year and the hottest July on record.

The parade climaxed the 18th annual convention of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association, held at the town of Ulster.

Five musical units and a large number of volunteer firemen, with their apparatus, and ladies' auxiliary members, Boy and Girl Scouts were in the line of march. Gathering at the Kingston-Ulster Airport on Boice's lane for (Continued on Page 3, Col. 2)

The Politburo was reported to have scheduled another meeting for today or tomorrow, and reliable West Berlin sources said it would receive orders from Moscow to reshuffle the government. Almost certain to be ousted was Interior Minister Willi Stoph.

The West Berlin newspaper Telegraf predicted yesterday that President Wilhelm Pieck also would be replaced by Gen. Vincenz Mueller, chief of staff of the East German armed forces. Pieck has been under medical treatment in Russia for several months.

Both the downfall of Hengst and the disgrace of Weinberger stemmed from the June rebellion. Neues Deutschland said they were (Continued on Page 11, Col. 3)

In their last act before their radio went dead, the trapped marines—back in the battlelines only three weeks—called in their own artillery on top of them in a desperate effort to halt the violent onslaught.

The number of marines in the battle was not immediately released.

Fourteen leathernecks of the First Marine Division were the first known survivors of the bloody battles for outposts East Berlin and Berlin, part of a key hill area on the western front.

Fatigued and wan, they staggered back into marine lines. Eight were from outpost Berlin and six from East Berlin.

How they got out was not learned immediately.

It was assumed they worked their way down the bloodied slopes after the Reds left the hill during daylight.

May Still Be Alive
They said more marines may still be alive in the battered bunkers and shell-ripped trenches on the outposts.

The survivors described the hills as a battle-torn No Man's Land. They said no Chinese were left atop the outposts, which were plastered by savage Red and allied artillery fire during the 1,500-man Red assault.

Allied fighter-bombers and marine guns pounded the hills relentlessly, but there was no immediate move to retake them.

The Fifth Air Force said its planes—taking advantage of hot, clear weather—slammed 500,000 pounds of bombs at Communist front-lines from the Berlin outposts to the Kumsong front in the east.

Other Targets Pounded
Sabre jets in their dual role as fighter-bombers, Australian Meteor jets, and marine planes pummeled other Red targets deep in North Korea.

Meanwhile, the 8th Army said the Communists lost 6,290 killed and 1,260 wounded across the front Sunday mostly on the turbulent east-central front, where the Reds last week hurled their biggest offensive in two years. The figure may have included some delayed reports.

Stolen Car Found; Man, 21, Is Held

Fred Lee Whitney Awaits Grand Jury: AWOL From Navy

A car stolen from Roy Mayone of 75 Cedar street early Sunday was recovered for him by his next-door neighbor, Officer Sheldon O'Rourke of the Kingston Police Department, a couple of hours later.

O'Rourke and Officer Hyndret Armstrong were dispatched to the north end of the Rondout Creek bridge at 3:39 a. m. Sunday when headquarters received a telephone call reporting an accident at that location.

They found upon arrival that a 1949 sedan had struck the bridge, a glancing blow which had damaged the right fender and bumper and that another car was pushing it across the bridge to the Port Ewen side.

Whitney Is Questioned
Operator of the car, the officers learned, was Fred Lee Whitney, 21, who listed his address as the YMCA. According to the officers, Whitney told them he had borrowed the car, but O'Rourke, recognizing it as Mayone's, was suspicious and Whitney was taken to headquarters where further investigation disclosed the vehicle had been stolen.

Police said Whitney told them he was AWOL from the U. S. navy and naval authorities were notified.

Following preliminary examination in city court this morning Judge Raymond J. Mino held Whitney for the grand jury.

Mrs. Mayone told The Freeman this morning that the car was stolen from in front of the house and that she and her husband didn't know it had been stolen until they received a call from police headquarters reporting that it had been recovered.

Car Suffers Damage
She said the car could be used but needed a new bumper, had been scratched on the side and the wheels were out of alignment.

Two Killed In Crash at Ferndale

Two persons were killed and several were injured when a car struck a bridge abutment and overturned after a collision with a trailer truck on Route 17 in the Ferndale area last night.

The dead are David Rosenberg, of 1631 Prospect Place, Brooklyn, and Max Karpell, of 126 Ludlow street, New York city.

State police said the car operated by Rosenberg had passed the trailer truck owned by Queens Farms, of Deposit "in the face of oncoming traffic," and as it "cut back in" came in contact with a bumper on the truck. The car then struck the bridge abutment and turned over several times.

Taken to Hospital

Second Flood Hits Japan; 273 Are Dead

Tokyo, July 20 (AP)—Thousands of Japanese were rescued today from debris-littered floodwaters as ground, sea and air teams worked feverishly to cut the human toll in the nation's second great flood disaster in three weeks.

The sudden flood that started with cloudburst rains last Friday swallowed whole villages at Wakayama on central Honshu Island's Pacific coast about 200 miles southwest of Tokyo.

National police headquarters here re-estimated the toll at 273 dead, 433 injured and 2,033 missing.

Earlier, police said more than 6,000 were dead or missing, but a spokesman reported later those totals listed many duplications caused by chaotic communications.

More Than 2,000 Rescued
More than 2,000 persons stranded on rooftops or trapped in flooded homes were plucked to safety by rescue teams searching the swirling waters.

U. S. Air Force planes crisscrossed the flood scene, dropping tons of food to stranded persons, while Japanese ships and ground forces scoured the area for survivors.

Rains stopped Sunday after two days of cloudbursts sent three mountain streams thundering down narrow valleys.

Flash floods hit valley villages—some before sleeping residents could flee.

New Rains Strike

Although skies began to clear and the rivers to recede on Central Honshu, new rains hit in the Tokyo area and the rivers there rose steadily.

Thousands worked during the night to plug gaps at river dikes with sandbags.

Mrs. Onobu Mitsuda, 50, was the only survivor of a family of five.

"We screamed and screamed for hours from the roof top as our house drifted to the ocean," she recalled.

"Then the roof broke up, and the waves swallowed by husband and daughter. A few minutes later a big log struck, and my mother and another daughter were lost."

New Paltz Man Is Heart Victim

Americo Stephen Tenedini, 35, of New Paltz, died of a heart condition last night while working under a floor with an electric drill at Mossy Brook House, which is operated by his father, Frank Tenedini, in the High Falls area.

It was first thought, authorities said, that Tenedini might have died of an electric shock, but an autopsy revealed death was due to the heart ailment.

Sgt. Arthur Reilly of the state police, and Coroner Michael Galletta, who investigated, said a sewer line in the boarding house had become plugged, and Tenedini went under the floor with the drill between 6 and 7 p. m. to loosen the stoppage.

Not Direct Cause
Coroner Galletta said a mark on his body indicated he had been burned, or possibly shocked due to the dampness under the floor near the sewer line, but if so, this was not the direct cause of death.

The cause of death was described as a "severe heart condition." Authorities said he was dead on arrival of Dr. Anthony Tocco, of Stone Ridge, at the house.

An employee of the engineering department of IBM, Poughkeepsie, Tenedini, is survived by his wife, Livia Zandonella Tenedini, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tenedini, two sons, Richard and Kenneth, and a sister, Mrs. Rocco Castoro.

Funeral arrangements by the George J. Moylan Funeral Home, Rosendale, will be announced.

Poughkeepsie Man Heads State Legion As Commander

Rochester, July 20 (AP)—Paul S. Samuels, of Poughkeepsie, is the new commander of the New York state department of the American Legion.

The Legion wound up its three-day annual convention here yesterday by electing Samuels to succeed Bruce Percy, of Rochester.

The new vice commanders: Edgar W. Allen, of Dansville; Albert Goll, of Port Jefferson; Martin Harr Jr., of Indian Lake; Frank La Rocca, of Yonkers; and Raymond McLaughlin, of Johnson City.

Other officers: William J. Dwyer, of Cortland, treasurer; the Rev. Paul Brunet, of Altona, chaplain; Frank E. Monnin, of Penn Yan, historian; and Leo V. Lansing, of Buffalo, national executive committee man.

Auxiliary Officers
Samuels, Percy and Dwyer were elected delegates-at-large to the national convention, along with Jacob Ark, of Rochester, and Arthur F. Duffy, of Queens.

The Legion Auxiliary elected Mrs. Stanley J. Autenrieth, of New York, as president; Mrs. Jesse Haley, of West Stephentown, first vice-president; Mrs. John Milbury of Mount Vernon, second vice-president, and Mrs. Leonard Mical, of Ithaca, third vice president.

Legion officials said that for the first time in five years a resolution approved by the resolution committee was defeated on the floor of the convention. The resolution called for the veterans administration to provide the chiropractic services to veterans that desired such treatment in VA hospitals.

Two More Communists Under Kremlin Fire During Purge

Berlin, July 20 (AP)—Another top official was missing today from the higher bracket of East German communism. The Reds purged a party secretary and also censured a cabinet minister, perhaps as a prelude to firing him.

Western sources predicted even more heads would fall, this week or next, in the hunt for scapegoats to blame for the June 17 workers uprising.

The East German shakeup reflected continuing purges throughout the iron curtain countries, the latest in the Soviet Republic of Azerbaijan, where Prime Minister Mir-Djafar D. Bagirov was dismissed. Moscow radio said yesterday he had been charged with "gross bureaucratism."

In Germany, the ruling Socialist Unity (Communist) party's Politburo fired Adalbert Hengst, a party secretary, and "sharply censured" Bernd Weinberger, minister for construction of transport vehicles and machines, according to the official party newspaper Neues Deutschland.

The Politburo was reported to have scheduled another meeting for today or tomorrow, and reliable West Berlin sources said it would receive orders from Moscow to reshuffle the government.

Almost certain to be ousted was Interior Minister Willi Stoph.

The West Berlin newspaper Telegraf predicted yesterday that President Wilhelm Pieck also would be replaced by Gen. Vincenz Mueller, chief of staff of the East German armed forces. Pieck has been under medical treatment in Russia for several months.

Both the downfall of Hengst and the disgrace of Weinberger stemmed from the June rebellion. Neues Deutschland said they were (Continued on Page 11, Col. 3)

Fighting Is To End 12 Hours After

Reds Complete Work on Hut to Be Used for Signing — Might Come in Week

Panmunjom, July 20 (AP)—Teams of Allied and Communist officers—including for the first time the men who would oversee a cease-fire—worked in nine secret sessions today on the final details of a Korean armistice.

Two staff officer sessions were set for 10 a. m. Tuesday (8 p. m. Monday, EST).

The Reds, meanwhile, put the finishing touches on a large hut to be used for signing the historic document which would end the three years of fighting.

There was no official indication just when the armistice would be signed, but some observers said it could be within a week. Fighting would end 12 hours after the signing.

Deadline Is Broken

A month-long deadlock in the negotiations was broken when a Communist announcement Sunday that the Reds were ready to prepare for the signing.

Three U. S. members of the military armistice commission flew here unexpectedly for the first time and met for one hour, 50 minutes with Communist members of the commission.

The commission, composed of top officers from the opposing armies, would control the buffer zone between the two forces.

The Red and allied commission members discussed "suggested arrangements which they (the Reds) will consider and probably come back with their proposal," said Navy Capt. B. M. Coleman, McLean, Va., one of the U. S. members. Another meeting was planned, but no time was given.

Optimism Heightened
The speeded tempo of Monday's sessions—running from 10 a. m. to 8:05 p. m. (6:05 a. m. EST)—heightened optimism for an early signing.

Total time spent by five different teams, including interpreters and liaison officers, was seven hours, 42 minutes.

The main truce delegations presumably are awaiting a call from the lower level staff officers to set a date for the signing.

Both sides quickened the pace toward a truce signing in the wake of the sudden Communist announcement Sunday that they were ready to go ahead with final preparations in return for allied assurance that South Korea would abide by a cease-fire.

But South Korean Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai hinted more opposition from Syngman Rhee's government might be in the wind with a statement that the Communist agreement contained "many traps."

He said it showed the Reds intended to take "all South Korea by subversive activity and by liquidating the army which we have built so painstakingly and with so much expense."

An unnamed Republic of Korea (ROK) spokesman said allied assurances meant the UN "had lost the war."

Volunteers Hold Their 18th Parade

Torrid Sun Bakes Line of March; Accident Mars Event

Volunteer firemen from all over the county marched under blazing sun Saturday afternoon as hundreds of spectators lined both sides of Albany avenue extension from Roosevelt avenue to Morton Boulevard.

As the siren at the Ulster Hose Company's firehouse sounded at exactly 2 p. m., to announce the start of the parade, the recording thermometer in its shaded box atop the city hall in Kingston stood at just a hair under 102 degrees—the hottest day so far this year and the hottest July on record.

The parade climaxed the 18th annual convention of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association, held at the town of Ulster.

Five musical units and a large number of volunteer firemen, with their apparatus, and ladies' auxiliary members, Boy and Girl Scouts were in the line of march.

Florence-Stephan Street Area Shaken by Dynamite Blast

A blast of dynamite at new construction on the corner of Florence and Stephan streets late Saturday morning threw stones, some weighing as much as 12 pounds, for hundreds of feet, damaging roofs and exteriors of homes in the neighborhood and littering yards and streets, according to statements filed with police and statements of residents.

The blast, described as a "terrific explosion," was reported to have come suddenly without warning when workers set off the dynamite while blasting stone for a cellar at a new house being built at the intersection.

Police Officer Gurnsey Burger, Jr., who resides at 129 Stephan street, reported that "12-pound rocks" fell in his child's playground, one of which struck the swing. He estimated the distance of the yard from the blast at approximately 300 feet.

TV Is Affected
He said there was "plenty of noise" but that his property had not been damaged by falling stones except for some cement falling out of his chimney and a "lopsided" television picture.

He said he believed a New Paltz contractor was in charge of the operation and that there was "no warning of the blast." The blast was covered with a steel mat, Burger said.

Mrs. Jesse Pardee of 127 Stephan street said the explosion was "terrific" and that stones fell "all over the yard."

Child Nearly Struck
Mrs. Pardee said the stones fell as far away as Hayes street, a distance of about two blocks, and that one of the stones "almost hit a child."

She reported that people who heard the explosion "came from all over" in their cars.

Workmen on the dynamiting job wanted to clean up the yard, she told The Freeman, but she said she told them she would rather they didn't until Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Francis, who reside at 127 Stephan street, returned.

Edward J. Whalen of 139 Stephan street reported that his television antenna had been damaged slightly and that he had "lost" the picture on his screen. He said his property hadn't received any other damage of which he was aware but that "all the houses on the block got some of it."

Florence-Stephan Street Area Shaken by Dynamite Blast

A blast of dynamite at new construction on the corner of Florence and Stephan streets late Saturday morning threw stones, some weighing as much as 12 pounds, for hundreds of feet, damaging roofs and exteriors of homes in the neighborhood and littering yards and streets, according to statements filed with police and statements of residents.

The blast, described as a "terrific explosion," was reported to have come suddenly without warning when workers set off the dynamite while blasting stone for a cellar at a new house being built at the intersection.

Police Officer Murray Burger, Jr., who resides at 129 Stephan street, reported that "12-pound rocks" fell in his child's playyard, one of which struck the swing. He estimated the distance of the yard from the blast at approximately 300 feet.

TV Is Affected

He said there was "plenty of noise" but that his property had not been damaged by falling stones except for some cement falling out of his chimney and a "lopsided" television picture.

He said he believed a New

Paltz contractor was in charge of the operation and that there was "no warning of the blast." The blast was not covered with a steel mat, Burger said.

Mrs. Jesse Pardee of 127 Stephan street said the explosion was "terrific" and that stones fell "all over the yard."

Child Nearly Struck

Mrs. Pardee said the stones fell as far away as Hayes street, a distance of about two blocks, and that one of the stones "almost hit a child."

She reported that people who heard the explosion "came from all over" in their cars.

Workers on the dynamiting job wanted to clean up the yard, she told the Freeman, but she said they didn't until Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Francis, who reside at 127 Stephan street, returned. Mrs. Pardee is Mrs. Francis' mother.

Edward J. Whalen of 139 Stephan street reported that his television antenna had been damaged slightly and that he had "lost" the picture on his screen.

He said he had not received any other damage of which he was aware but that "all the houses on the block got some of it."

Lehman Assails Senator

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Sen. Lehman (D-Lib-N.Y.) told the Senate today that Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) engaged in "pure demagoguery" in blaming anti-Semitism for attacks on two staff aides, Roy Cohn and David Schine.

Lehman said he was speaking as a Jew in denouncing McCarthy's statement, made on a television program (Meet the Press) yesterday that criticism of Cohn and Schine was based on anti-Semitism. Lehman said he was one of those who had criticized "the antics of these two brash young men," and that he felt many others of Jewish faith shared his belief that the staff aides "have been doing our country and the cause of anti-communism great harm here and abroad."

Palen was arrested yesterday at Waterbury airport by State Policeman Joseph Ciecierski of the Bethany barracks and Det. Lt. ## Maurice J. Tobin Dies at Scituate

Scituate, Mass., July 20 (AP)—Former Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, one-time Democratic governor of Massachusetts and twice mayor of Boston, died of a heart attack in the arms of his wife at their summer home here yesterday. He was 52.

He had played 18 holes of golf the day before and had retired shortly before midnight in apparent good health and spirits.

He arose about 7 a. m. (EST) and made three telephone calls. One of the calls was to the telephone operator to learn the correct time. It was 7:28 (EST).

As it was more than an hour before he was scheduled to attend Sunday Mass, Tobin, his wife said, returned to bed and was reading the newspaper in his pajamas when he suddenly gasped for breath.

His wife ran to his side and put her arms around him to hold him in an upright position.

Heart Attack Blamed
Medical Examiner Herbert N. Blanchard pronounced death due to a heart attack. Members of Tobin's family said the ex-secretary of labor had known for 18 months that he suffered a heart condition but never slowed his pace.

It was reported in Boston, where Tobin lived, that he planned to run as Democratic candidate for governor in next year's election.

In Independence, Mo., former President Harry Truman said: "He was a fine man. He was a great mayor of Boston, a great governor of Massachusetts and he made one of the best secretaries of labor the country ever had. I'm shocked. The country is losing a very great man and I hate to see this happen. His family has all my sympathy."

Tobin served on Truman's cabinet for four years and five months, beginning in August, 1948.

His funeral will be held Wednesday morning with a solemn high requiem Mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross (Catholic), Boston. He will be buried from his home in Jamaica Plain, a section of Boston.

refreshments and rest after the parade, the firemen were given a demonstration of two-way radio communication by Chief Dewey Borden of Liberty and two of his firemen.

Trophies Awarded
Trophies were awarded to outstanding units. The A. H. Wicks Engine and Truck Company took first prize for the best appearing fire company in line. They appeared in their new two-tone blue uniforms, and officers carried the traditional speaking trumpets with bouquets of flowers. Capt. A. Foster Winfield accepted the trophy on behalf of the company. The new uniforms, which had been ready for the cancelled Memorial Day parade, were worn for the parade at Lake George, where the Wicks contingent also won first prize.

The Wicks company, led by Capt. Winfield, Lieutenants Miller F. Locke and Philip H. Greer, was the only Kingston volunteer company in line. Carrying out another tradition of the volunteer parades of yesterday, the company also had Irving Smith's dalmatian dog in its Engine No. 4.

Woodstock Is Second
The trophy for second best appearing company was awarded to the Woodstock Fire Company and was accepted by Chief George Haythorne.

First prize for best musical unit went to the much honored Port Ewen Drum Corps, which, as is usual, received much applause throughout the line of march as it went through its marching drill. At the demonstration of the two-way radio system, Chief Borden's own automobile was driven around back roads to a distance of nine and a half miles from the airport, and during that time maintained radio communication with a unit mounted on a Liberty fire department pumper at the airport. Chief Borden gave a running commentary on a loudspeaking system.

The parade was reviewed by town of Ulster officials from a reviewing stand set up near the Ulster firehouse.

Three-Car Accident

The parade was marred by a three-car accident which occurred in front of the town of Ulster firehouse as spectators were gathering at 1:30 p. m. Saturday.

The sheriff's office reported that an automobile driven by Howard Quick, 39, of 32 Shufeldt street, Kingston, stopped on Albany avenue extension near the firehouse to ask Deputy Sheriff Albert E. Eisele, who was doing traffic duty there, where to park. A Terwilliger Brothers pickup truck driven by John J. Connell, 34, of Rosendale, stopped in line behind Quick, and then an automobile driven by Edna S. Short, 51, of St. Remy crashed into the rear of the pickup truck, driving it ahead into Quick's automobile, the sheriff's office reported.

Taken to Hospital

Four occupants of the Short car were taken by Schultz ambulance to the Kingston Hospital, but all have since been released. They were listed on the sheriff's report as Lillian Quick, 42; Billy Malesky, eight months, Robert Malesky, two and one-half, both of Schenectady, and Anastasia Carroll, 57, of Richmond Hill. Investigation was by County Investigator Arthur H. Brown, Identification Officer Earl Conno, Deputy Chester Wolven.

Those officers, together with a large force of sheriff's men under Sheriff Cluett Schantz and Under Sheriff Clayton W. Vredenburg handled traffic throughout the parade time.

Senior Is Overcome

Another incident occurred after paraders reached the airport. Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy dispatched his chief's car to escort a station wagon to Kingston Hospital with Joseph Senior, 32, of R. D. 1, Kingston, a marcher who was overcome with heat exhaustion. He was admitted to the hospital, and was discharged later the same night, hospital authorities reported.

Matthews to Get Hearing, House Probers Decide

Washington, July 20 (AP)—The House Un-American Activities Committee voted today to grant a hearing to J. B. Matthews, ousted from a Senate committee job, because of an article he wrote criticizing part of the clergy. Matthews had asked to be heard.

Chairman Velde (R-Ill.) told newsmen no decision was made as to when Matthews will be called.

In a formal statement, Velde reported that Matthews will be told his testimony will be limited to the presentation of facts relating to his assertion that "the largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States today is composed of Protestant clergymen."

October Date Seen

That article set off a public furor. Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), chairman of the Senate Investigations subcommittee, called Matthews "a star spangled American" and at first refused to accept his resignation as executive director of the subcommittee staff.

Later he did so and Matthews then petitioned Velde asking to appear before the House committee so that he could document his statement.

Velde told newsmen he personally does not believe Matthews will be heard until sometime in October.

The chairman declined to report any details regarding the vote. He also refused to say whether there were any dissenting votes or if political party lines were followed. There are five Republicans and four Democrats on the committee.

Stolen Car Found;

Japanese camera on the front seat had been reportedly taken by Whitney and exchanged for gasoline.

A second allegedly stolen car was also recovered early today by Officers O'Rourke and Floyd Krom when they arrested Thomas Character, 26, listed as a resident of the state of Georgia. Character was picked up on East Union street near Chambers street on a charge of public intoxication, police said.

Local police said late this morning Character had been returned by Columbia county state police to that county where the 1949 sedan in his possession had been reported stolen, and that he would be arraigned on a charge of grand larceny first degree.

Polish Priest Sought

Bradford, England, July 20 (AP)—Police pushed a search today for a Polish priest amid growing fears he may have been kidnapped by Communists. Father Henry Dorynski, 42-year-old Roman Catholic chaplain to 1,500 Poles living in this Yorkshire industrial center, disappeared a week ago. The 120,000 Poles in Britain have been asked to help find him.

Seven Soldiers Get Long Terms at Dix

Fort Dix, N. J., July 20 (AP)—Seven army privates charged with disobeying an order to fall in for drill have been convicted of mutiny. Six of them were sentenced to 20 years in prison, the seventh to 15.

The army announced Saturday that the mutiny had taken place June 11. Capt. Harry H. Lapham, public information officer, said the seven were in a special unit made up of violators of military rules.

The seven GIs were sentenced to dishonorable discharges and forfeiture of all pay and allowances in addition to the prison terms in a general court martial July 9, Lapham said. He would not say why the news of the alleged mutiny had been held up until Saturday.

Refused Sergeant's Order
Lapham said the seven privates refused to fall in for close order drill after being ordered to do so by a sergeant. He said they then refused when a commissioned officer repeated the order and explained the gravity of the offense to each man.

Lapham said the court martial found that the action of the seven GIs was "concerted one by the group and this made them liable to trial under article 94 of the uniform code of military justice, dealing with mutiny or sedition."

Convicted Men

Lapham said the convicted men are:

Sentenced to 20 years each—Pvt. Daniel McCann, 21, Troy, N. Y.; Pvt. Anthony Verdene, 21, 116-16 121st street, Ozone Park, N. Y.; Pvt. Ernest N. Casale, 21, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Pvt. Samuel Castellano, 21, Staten Island, N. Y.; Pvt. Joseph P. Ganneillo, 18, 5 State St., New Rochelle, N. Y.; and Pvt. Joseph Randazzo, 18, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Sentenced to 15 years—Pvt. William P. Evans, 18, Philadelphia.

The convictions are being reviewed now and will be submitted to Maj. Gen. Homer W. Kiefer, commanding officer of the base.

Before the sentences are executed, Lapham said, they will go to a board of review of the office of the judge advocate general in Washington. If that board upholds the convictions, the privates can petition for a review of the case by the court of military appeal, the highest military tribunal.

Texas Gets Floods, But Little Relief From Its Drouth

Fort Worth, July 20 (AP)—Hit-and-miss heavy rains have caused flash floods in Texas during the past week. Yet a federal soil expert says the state's worst drouth is unbroken.

A similar situation was reported in Oklahoma—good rains, but not enough.

Louis P. Merrill of Fort Worth, U.S. Soil Conservation Service Regional Director, said today locally torrential downpours have been "immensely helpful." But he said it will take more general rains over a longer period to end the drouth—in its fourth year in parts of Texas.

"The drouth is still on," the soil expert said. Some of the heaviest downpours yesterday drenched parts of west Texas, declared a drouth disaster area and eligible for emergency federal help. But the thunderstorms were spotty.

Merrill said he doubted whether more than 15 or 20 of 152 drouth disaster counties in west, north and south Texas have had rain.

Friday and Saturday thunderstorms caused serious flood threats at Fort Worth, Fort Davis, Abilene and Albany. Many families were evacuated.

Oklahoma ranchers reported two weeks of rain, including as much as five inches in some sections Saturday, will revive wilted grass and fill dry stock ponds. However, observers said much more rain was needed to revive subsoil moisture.

refreshments and rest after the parade, the firemen were given a demonstration of two-way radio communication by Chief Dewey Borden of Liberty and two of his firemen.

Trophies Awarded

Trophies were awarded to outstanding units. The A. H. Wicks Engine and Truck Company took first prize for the best appearing fire company in line. They appeared in their new two-tone blue uniforms, and officers carried the traditional speaking trumpets with bouquets of flowers. Capt. A. Foster Winfield accepted the trophy on behalf of the company. The new uniforms, which had been ready for the cancelled Memorial Day parade, were worn for the parade at Lake George, where the Wicks contingent also won first prize.

The Wicks company, led by Capt. Winfield, Lieutenants Miller F. Locke and Philip H. Greer, was the only Kingston volunteer company in line. Carrying out another tradition of the volunteer parades of yesterday, the company also had Irving Smith's dalmatian dog in its Engine No. 4.

Woodstock Is Second

The trophy for second best appearing company was awarded to the Woodstock Fire Company and was accepted by Chief George Haythorne.

First prize for best musical unit went to the much honored Port Ewen Drum Corps, which, as is usual, received much applause throughout the line of march as it went through its marching drills.

At the demonstration of the two-way radio system, Chief Borden's own automobile was driven around back roads to a distance of nine and a half miles from the airport, and during that time maintained radio communication with a unit mounted on a Liberty fire department pumper at the airport. Chief Borden gave a running commentary on a loudspeaking system.

The parade was reviewed by town of Ulster officials from a reviewing stand set up near the Ulster firehouse.

Three-Car Accident

The parade was marred by a three-car accident which occurred in front of the town of Ulster firehouse as spectators were gathering at 1:30 p. m. Saturday.

The sheriff's office reported that an automobile driven by Howard Quick, 39, of 32 Shufeldt street, Kingston, stopped on Albany avenue extension near the firehouse to ask Deputy Sheriff Albert E. Eisele, who was doing traffic duty there, where to park. A Terwilliger Brothers pickup truck driven by John J. Connell, 34, of Roseville, stopped in line behind Quick, and then an automobile driven by Edna S. Short, 51, of St. Remy crashed into the rear of the pickup truck, driving it ahead into Quick's automobile, the sheriff's office reported.

Taken to Hospital

Four occupants of the Short car were taken by Schuff's ambulance to the Kingston Hospital but all have since been released. They were listed on the sheriff's report as Lillian Quick, 42; Billy Malesky, eight months, Robert Malesky, two and one-half, both of Schenectady, and Anastasia Carroll, 57, of Richmond Hill. Investigation was by County Investigator Arthur H. Brown, Identification Officer Earl Conno, Deputy Chester Wollen.

Those officers, together with a large force of sheriff's men under Sheriff Chet Schantz and Under Sheriff Clayton W. Vredenburg handled traffic throughout the parade time.

Senior Is Overcome

Another incident occurred after paraders reached the airport. Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy dispatched his chief's car to escort a station wagon to Kingston Hospital with Joseph Senior, 32, of R. D. 1, Kingston, a marcher who was overcome with heat exhaustion. He was admitted to the hospital, and was discharged later the same night, hospital authorities reported.

Seven Soldiers Get Long Terms at Dix

Fort Dix, N. J., July 20 (AP)—Seven army privates charged with disobeying an order to fall in for drill have been convicted of mutiny. Six of them were sentenced to 20 years in prison, the seventh to 15.

The army announced Saturday that the mutiny had taken place June 11. Capt. Harry H. Lapham, public information officer, said the seven were in a special unit made up of violators of military rules.

The seven GIs were sentenced to dishonorable discharges and forfeiture of all pay and allowances in addition to the prison terms in a general court martial July 9, Lapham said. He would not say why the news of the alleged mutiny had been held up until Saturday.

Lapham said the court martial found that the action of the seven GIs was "concerted one by the group and this made them liable to trial under article 94 of the uniform code of military justice, dealing with mutiny or sedition."

Convicted Men

Lapham said the convicted men are: Sentenced to 20 years each—Pvt. Daniel McCann, 21, Troy, N. Y.; Pvt. Anthony Verdane, 21, 116-16 121st street, Ozone Park, N. Y.; Pvt. Ernest N. Casale, 21, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Pvt. Samuel Castellano, 21, Staten Island, N. Y.; Pvt. Joseph P. Ganeccio, 18, 5 State St., New Rochelle, N. Y.; and Pvt. Joseph Randazzo, 18, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Sentenced to 15 years—Pvt. William P. Evans, 18, Philadelphia. The convictions are being reviewed now and will be submitted to Maj. Gen. Homer W. Kiefer, commanding officer of the base. Before the sentences are executed, Lapham said, they will go to a board of review of the office of the judge advocate general in Washington. If that board upholds the convictions, the privates can petition for a review of the case by the court of military appeal, the highest military tribunal.

Harris Leonard, 38, of Deposit, driver of the trailer truck, was apparently uninjured. State police said the accident happened at the intersection of Route 17 and the Bushville road, and that Rosenberg's body, missing for some time after the mishap, was found along a stream after a search by police, volunteer firemen and others. The bodies were removed to the Ramsey Funeral Home, Liberty. Karpell's body, troopers said, was badly mangled.

Texas Gets Floods, But Little Relief From Its Drouth

Fort Worth, July 20 (AP)—Hit-and-miss heavy rains have caused flash floods in Texas during the past week. Yet a federal soil expert says the state's worst drouth is unbroken.

A similar situation was reported in Oklahoma—good rains, but not enough.

Louis P. Merrill of Fort Worth, U.S. Soil Conservation Service Regional Director, said today locally torrential downpours have been "immensely helpful." But he said it will take more general rains over a longer period to end the drouth—in its fourth year in parts of Texas.

"The drouth is still on," the soil expert said. Some of the heaviest downpours yesterday drenched parts of west Texas, declared a drouth disaster area and eligible for emergency federal help.

But the thunderstorms were spotty. Merrill said he doubted whether more than 15 or 20 of 152 drouth disaster counties in west, north and south Texas have had rain.

Friday and Saturday thunderstorms caused serious flood threats at Fort Worth, Fort Davis, Abilene and Albany. Many families were evacuated.

Oklahoma ranchers reported two weeks of rain, including as much as five inches in some sections Saturday, will revive wilted grass and fill dry stock ponds. However, observers said much more rain was needed to revive subsoil moisture.

NOISES OF PROGRESS

Most new inventions, doing mankind no end of good, still have their disadvantages. There are some air-conditioners, for example. In Brooklyn, N. Y., a woman has brought suit against a neighbor who has an air-conditioner in his bedroom. The woman complains that the new machine makes so much noise that her family cannot sleep. Her husband drives a cab by day and needs to keep his nervous system in good order, which he cannot do if he cannot get enough sleep to keep his nerves calm. Neither she nor the children get proper sleep, either, she told the judge.

The magistrate declared that air-conditioners were being installed in large numbers in Brooklyn. He said:

"The question arises how far can a person go to get his own personal comfort at the expense of his neighbor? This is a serious matter which must be legally determined by a court of last resort."

It is indeed a serious question. If one man cannot sleep without his air machine and his neighbors cannot sleep with it, what then? We await the answer.

There are also trucks, those blessings to commerce. Why do they have to be so noisy? Surely something could be done to calm their raucous clamor in the night.

A mother in the north woods wrote her daughter to prepare the small fry for a new noise.

"Besides mice scurrying and porcupines gnawing and birds roosting on the ridgepole and that funny little coughing noise the blue herons make dashing from one bay to the other at dawn, I heard a queer one in the wind the other night. It took me a long time to identify it. The new hydro-electric wires sing a strange song of their own when the north wind blows. It's not a really bad noise, just odd and unexpected."

*Add this to the noises of progress!

BIG FOUR MEETING?

The Big Three foreign ministers have hit on a plan which may make a meeting of the Big Four possible later this year. They intend to invite Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov to meet with them in the fall to discuss problems of Germany and Austria. If Molotov should accept and give evidence of negotiating in good faith, an invitation to Georgi Malenkov would be extended and the heads of state of the Big Four would take over the negotiations.

There are several drawbacks to the idea. By next fall Premier Laniel of France may no longer be in office. With the purges beginning anew in Russia there is no assurance that Molotov will be around to negotiate even if he should want to. It is a matter of speculation as to whether the Russians would agree to participate in a conference in which their good behavior was made a condition for their participation.

What would come out of a meeting of the chiefs of state of the Big Four? Would Russia attempt to make such a meeting a platform for launching new propaganda against the West? How would Malenkov, assuming that he would still be in power at the time of the conference, respond to negotiations around a conference table?

Perhaps the Big Four talks will never materialize. But the Big Three foreign ministers were shrewd in hitting on a plan to bring them about. Moscow has tried to place the blame for the tension in the world on the shoulders of the West. If Russian reaction to the idea makes a Big Four conference impossible, the world will know who to blame.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE COVER-UP

In a totalitarian state, the man who fails is exiled or killed. In a free society, it is not expected that honorable and competent men will never make mistakes, but the hope is that due regard for decency and a sense of loyalty will require them to admit error; that under such circumstances a man will resign from his position, giving his superior an opportunity to choose between letting the man go or giving him another chance.

Under no circumstance is a cover-up tenable. The whole theory of our success is that courageous men were able to admit error without fear. The man who covered up was regarded as a coward. He was looked upon as a slick article who fixed things for himself, but left all the mess for someone else.

These ideas, like so many others which controlled the thinking of the God-fearing people who created our society, are today regarded as old-fashioned. In these days, everybody, particularly in government, is constantly covering up all sorts of mistakes. That is why we are in such trouble in Europe and Asia. That is why the cost of government is so high; that is why we are beset by so many confusing problems.

Usually we think about specific acts which attract our attention, but occasionally we need to delve more deeply into the origins of the news so that we can think out our problems. There is no substitute for the truth. There is no substitute for a moral response to the challenges of the truth.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt, one of the most ingenious politicians of our age, was faced by a public furor over the appointment of Senator Hugo Black to the Supreme Court Bench, he delivered his Quarantine Speech in Chicago which diverted attention from a political error to an international menace. The Quarantine Speech is tremendously important as an historic document because its repercussion in Japan was immediate. The Japanese decided that the United States would ultimately go to war and that Japan would be a target. The course of events leading up to Pearl Harbor can now be documented right back to the Quarantine Speech; yet, factually it was not so intended. It was only a political device to take the public eye off the Black appointment.

When the Yalta Conference took place in secrecy, and errors were made for which we are now paying with the blood of our sons, public attention was diverted in all directions. Questions asked about Yalta were not answered. The assumption was that it was all too secret; that the American people would not understand. From Yalta until today, all the consequences of that conference have been harmful to the United States and beneficial to Russia. And all the efforts of our government, no matter who is President, have been designed to cover up the mistakes, the reasons for the mistakes, who made them. There has not been a sufficient change during the Eisenhower Administration to alter this attitude.

Dean Acheson expanded the State Department until it overshadowed the rest of the government. He acted almost as a Prime Minister. President Truman gave Dean Acheson a latitude which no Cabinet member has ever had in our government. None of his predecessors under President Roosevelt or his forerunners ever possessed authority over departments of government other than his own.

Dean Acheson filled the State Department with a combination of persons who owed to him a personal allegiance and most of whom still remain in the State Department, the International Information Administration, the CIA and other departments of government. For instance, William Putnam Bundy, Dean Acheson's son-in-law, is in the CIA. Recently, Senators were shocked to learn that it is the intention of the Administration to appoint Bundy liaison between the National Security Council and the Atomic Energy Commission, two of the most vital and most secretive agencies of government, not only because of his closeness to Dean Acheson but because of his contributions to the Alger Hiss defense fund.

Yet, a strong effort was made to cover up the Bundy appointment principally on the ground that no one should know anything about anyone who works for the CIA. If that position is tenable, as it might be, then the CIA ought to be careful about whom it employs.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

EMOTIONAL DISTURBANCES, OVERWEIGHT

No matter what the age of a woman, she will sacrifice much in denying herself food for the sake of her appearance whereas her health is a secondary matter. But a man gradually increasing in weight finds himself looking better as he becomes rounded out and loses some of his corners or angles. His friends tell him how well he looks and his mirror shows how full his face has become, but, unfortunately, does not, unless he turns sideways, show his protruding abdomen.

For years, Dr. Eugene Fisk, the noted chief medical examiner of the corporation making yearly physical examinations for policy holders of life insurance companies, has been telling his physicians and the public generally that the average weight of the population at 30 years of age, with due regard to height, age, and build, is the ideal weight for life expectancy.

In "The Ontario Medical Review," Dr. F. S. Brien, Professor of Medicine, states that it would appear that from 25 to 30 per cent of the adult population is overweight. This constitutes one of the greatest problems in preventive medicine today. The studies of our nutrition research physicians have failed to show any abnormality in the obese individual that explains his fat; he simply gets fat because he overeats. This means that research workers must find why he overeats.

"Of the contributing factors to obesity," Dr. Brien writes, "much the most important lie in the psychological realm. Like alcoholism, overeating affords a convenient avenue of escape in various emotional disturbances. In such disorders (as sorrow, grief, anxiety, loneliness, frustration), excessive eating is often indulged in for the temporary solace it provides."

Dr. Brien does not believe that gland disturbances (thyroid, pituitary, adrenal, sex) are a frequent cause of obesity.

What about heredity and overweight? There is no doubt that body build is inherited, but obesity is not inherited. It is acquired. As stated before, it is the habit of overeating that constitutes obesity, it is inherited. This means that while an individual may inherit certain physical characteristics, he can't blame his parents so much for his overweight for the blame is on his own shoulders; he eats more food than he needs.

Getting Around This Bird Is the Real Problem

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent
 Washington (NEA) — Shake-speare or somebody once said that consistency was a jewel. He might have added that it's rarer than most jewels when you find it among politicians.

Anyway, the furor resulting in the resignation of Dr. J. B. Matthews as chief of staff for Senator Joe McCarthy's investigating committee and the later resignation of the three Democratic members, has given Washington some prime examples of political inconsistency.

The bone of contention in this case was, of course, Dr. Matthews' article "Communism and Our Churches." It was written before Dr. Matthews was appointed to the Senate committee staff by Senator McCarthy. The line that stirred up all the fuss was the statement that "at least 7,000" Protestant clergymen in the United States "are serving the Kremlin conspiracy."

In defending the Matthews appointment, Chairman McCarthy came up with a prime inconsistency of his own.

"I do not," said Senator Joe, "set myself up as a censor."

News for U. S. Librarians

This should be news to the people who run the overseas libraries for the State Department's U. S. Information Centers. In their opinion, Senator McCarthy has been doing a whale of a job of censoring many whole books right off their shelves for the past several months.

In further defending Dr. Matthews, Senator McCarthy emphasized that the article on the churches was written before the author had any intention of becoming a member of the committee staff.

"He was a free-lance writer," Senator McCarthy is quoted as saying, "projecting his own views and conclusions. What he wrote in the article did not represent the thinking of the committee. It had nothing to do with the committee."

Let that one sink for a minute. Then recall the cases of Reed Harris and Theodore Kaghan, two former employees of the State Department's information staff, who were drummed out of government service after hearings before the McCarthy committee.

Kaghan, deputy chief of information in Germany, admitted before the McCarthy committee that in the 1930's he had written plays which were probably "acceptable to the Communists" though they did not follow the party line. This was nearly 10 years before Kaghan became a war-time government employee and before he had any intention of becoming a government employee. They did not represent the views of the government and they had nothing to do with the government.

Case of Reed Harris

The case of Reed Harris is similar. In 1931, at age 21, Harris wrote a book, "Football — The Vulgarization of the American College." In it, Harris defended the right of the Communists to teach. "I wrote it in three weeks and I have regretted it ever since," said Harris before the McCarthy committee in recounting his youthful views. He said he does not now believe in the right of Communists to teach.

This Harris book was written three years before he became a government employee for the first time. It did not represent government policy and it had nothing to do with government.

For the sake of consistency, then, the question is on what differences there are between the free-lance writings of Dr. Matthews and the free-lance writings of Harris and Kaghan. All were merely expressing their personal views of the time.

Dr. Matthews has led a varied and active life. Now 59, he was educated in theology and served as a Methodist missionary in Java.

In 1932 Dr. Matthews was a Socialist and a self-confessed Marxist, convinced of the necessity of a united front for all left-wing movements in the U. S. As late as 1935 he was still considered a left-winger, but shortly thereafter he changed his views again to become an anti-Communist and chief of the investigative staff of the original Dies committee.

He recanted his earlier views just as Kaghan and Harris did.

Today in Washington

Anti-McCarthy Group Is Charged With Having Done Great Damage in Nation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, July 20—The anti-McCarthy strategists here can now survey the wreckage they have wrought in the last ten days. For never has there been as much harm done in so little time—and particularly in achieving the opposite of what was intended by them.

First and foremost is the damage done to the vast majority of Protestant clergymen in America—not by Senator McCarthy nor by his staff investigator, J. B. Matthews, but by those who gave nationwide publicity to a charge against the Protestant clergy as a whole which neither Mr. McCarthy nor Mr. Matthews had ever made.

Again and again articles of a highly slanderous nature have appeared in crusading magazines of small circulation but most of the time these are not picked up either by senators or by newspapers to give much wider publicity to the charges made. Millions upon millions of readers a few days ago read for the first time news dispatches giving the impression that the whole Protestant clergy as an institution was under suspicion—and this never would have been the case if three Democratic senators, goaded by newspapermen here, had not seen fit to dignify and make a dispute over an article that could readily have been ignored. There was precedent for such an attitude.

Thus, for example, within the last few years in the same magazine, but under different ownership, an article appeared which questioned the financial integrity of President Truman with a lot of alleged facts concerning his business operations before he took office. This correspondent's assertions upholding Mr. Truman's personal integrity were vehemently attacked. But none of the Republican senators, to their credit be it said, took up the controversy over the charges or made headlines out of those baseless allegations which every press association would then have had to carry. There was no "Americans for Democratic Action" in existence to insist on increasing the circulation of the charges against the character of a man in public office.

Today the "Americans for Democratic Action"—perhaps finding themselves without arguments to answer Senator McCarthy's arguments and preferring to attack the man rather than devote themselves to his charges about the intrigue of the Communists in America—are circulating a pamphlet raising questions about the personal honesty of the Wisconsin senator in income-tax matters. The fact that three opposing senators signed the document of innuendo and character assassination which now has been reprinted by the "Americans for Democratic Action"—a supposedly "liberal" organization—is no alibi for spreading slander. The original report is a compilation of questions raised in typical smear fashion but giving no answers in conclusion and no evidence on which impartial conclusions could be based. Anybody, of course, who stops to think about it would realize that if there had been the slightest legal basis for seeking an indictment by a grand jury against Senator McCarthy for alleged income-tax irregularities, the Truman administration long ago would have done it with great eagerness, zeal and dispatch.

What many of the anti-McCarthyites in Washington don't realize—because they don't know American politics especially in states other than the eastern seaboard—is that politically they are making Senator McCarthy's faction stronger rather than weaker by reason of the personal attacks on him which have nothing to do with the main issue—anti-Communism. The Democratic senators who resigned from the Senate committee on governmental operations are individuals who have a good record in combating communism but most people don't know it. They have succeeded now rather in making it appear because of their action as a party group that the Democratic party which consistently fought the exposure of communistic influences in the State Department during the last administration is still on the side of squelching or blocking investigations of Communists.

A portion of the responsibility for the wreckage of the last ten days regrettably can be traced to some misguided members of the staff at the White House who don't seem to mind provoking an open fight between the President and a large segment of the Republican party in the middle west. A denial—not very convincing—was issued by the executive office purporting to disavow a newspaper report widely published by a correspondent close to the White House staff who wrote that the President's aides cleverly inspired the sending of an anti-McCarthy telegram by the three ministers who are joint chairmen of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. This very laudable organization, designed to advance the cause of brotherhood in religion, now to a certain extent has had its function questioned as a consequence of its inaccurately phrased message. Many citizens, and a large segment of the heads of that very good movement should allow themselves to be drawn into a stratagem of political warfare either with or without the collusion of the White House.

Throughout the United States there are many voters who are becoming bored with the controversy over Senator McCarthy's "methods." They say that "where there's smoke there's fire" and it isn't too important how the fire is put out especially in wartime—and this is wartime as the casualty lists from Korea have dramatized for three long years.

As for McCarthy, lots of people feel about him as Churchill did about Stalin in 1941 and as many Americans today feel about Tito and Franco—if they're allied on the same side in the fight against Communist imperialism their particular philosophies or "methods" are not as important as their energetic hostility to the common foe.

"The politicians of the City of New York are selecting little candidates for one of the most important offices in the country, the job of mayor. Robert Moses towers above all the scuffling, squalling urchins from whom the people will be forced to choose.

For many years this available genius has been excluded from consideration for contemptible reasons."

One of those reasons is that this superb "public official," as he calls himself in Who's Who, is morally and intellectually incapable of groveling before a vast aggregation of uncomprehending voters for the privilege of improving the condition of their city, cleaning their filthy streets and their disgusting subways, and restoring the reputation of popular government.

Dr. Moses cannot bring himself to compromise or flinch, whether to placate and serve the convenience of a lesser man in higher office, or to propitiate a "group" of artificially segregated voters. For lifelong obedience to this admirable quality he has been pegged as a troublesome fellow who can't get along with anybody when the fact is that he can't get along with an exacting conscience any other way.

For example, Franklin D. Roosevelt, on his appointment to the sinecure as Taconic Park commissioner, told Moses, who was in general charge of the whole works, that the secretary allotted to him by law at $5,000 a year would be actually his political manager, the late Louis Howe, and would do no public work for the money. Bob Moses stopped that graft cold. Therefore, although Roosevelt reached out and implicated other Republicans such as Frank Knox and Henry L. There is no reason to doubt that Moses would have been glad to serve, whether as cabinet officer or in the construction of soldier camps, factories or shipyards subject to no dishonest restrictions. But dishonest restrictions, such as tolerating extortions by union racketeers, or improper conduct by Roosevelt's relatives, were inherent in all jobs that Roosevelt gave with the air of a monarch bestowing honors. He knew better than to call on Moses.

Mr. Moses is a Republican. Tom Dewey is his equal, or thereabouts, as an administrator of government. But Dewey is governed by his own rule that a politician can't serve the people without getting elected and can't get elected without doing things that Moses wouldn't consider doing. There are perhaps no other men in the country with their grasp of the purpose of government and their competence in managing government. That Moses should have been made available to the service of the people in elective office merely because he was too honest to lie, truckle to fakery and mass-men and tolerate graft, such as Roosevelt's proposal for Louie Howe, is for the plain people to take up with themselves. They pay a high price for the patronizing hypocrisy of mountbancians who would put down imaginary Hitler.

As in that case, the immigrants have been surplus population, poor people fleeing a sad situation in their native land and finding themselves worse off on arrival. Again, as in that case, the Puerto Ricans are encouraged to come here by political colonizers who don't give a damn how many of them burn to death in fire-trap tenements, or how many of them go on relief and become idle, wretched prey to vice and objects of suspicion in the eyes of the resident population.

NOISES OF PROGRESS

Most new inventions, doing mankind no end of good, still have their disadvantages. There are some air-conditioners, for example. In Brooklyn, N. Y., a woman has brought suit against a neighbor who has an air-conditioner in his bedroom. The woman complains that the new machine makes so much noise that her family cannot sleep. Her husband drives a cab by day and needs to keep his nervous system in good order, which he cannot do if he cannot get enough sleep to keep his nerves calm. Neither she nor the children get proper sleep, either, she told the judge.

The magistrate declared that air-conditioners were being installed in large numbers in Brooklyn. He said:

"The question arises how far can a person go to get his own personal comfort at the expense of his neighbor? This is a serious matter which must be legally determined by a court of last resort."

It is indeed a serious question. If one man cannot sleep without his air machine and his neighbors cannot sleep with it, what then? We await the answer.

There are also trucks, those blessings to commerce. Why do they have to be so noisy? Surely something could be done to calm their raucous clamor in the night.

A mother in the north woods wrote her daughter to prepare the small fry for a new noise.

"Besides mice scurrying and porcupines gnawing and birds roosting on the ridgepole and that funny little coughing noise the blue herons make dashing from one bay to the other at dawn, I heard a queer one in the wind the other night. It took me a long time to identify it. The new hydro-electric wires sing a strange song of their own when the north wind blows. It's not a really bad noise, just odd and unexpected."

*Add this to the noises of progress!

BIG FOUR MEETING?

The Big Three foreign ministers have hit on a plan which may make a meeting of the Big Four possible later this year. They intend to invite Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov to meet with them in the fall to discuss problems of Germany and Austria. If Molotov should accept and give evidence of negotiating in good faith, an invitation to Georgi Malenkov would be extended and the heads of state of the Big Four would take over the negotiations.

There are several drawbacks to the idea. By next fall Premier Laniel of France may no longer be in office. With the purges beginning anew in Russia there is no assurance that Molotov will be around to negotiate even if he should want to. It is a matter of speculation as to whether the Russians would agree to participate in a conference in which their good behavior was made a condition for their participation.

What would come out of a meeting of the chiefs of state of the Big Four? Would Russia attempt to make such a meeting a platform for launching new propaganda against the West? How would Malenkov, assuming that he would still be in power at the time of the conference, respond to negotiations around a conference table?

Perhaps the Big Four talks will never materialize. But the Big Three foreign ministers were shrewd in hitting on a plan to bring them about. Moscow has tried to place the blame for the tension in the world on the shoulders of the West. If Russian reaction to the idea makes a Big Four conference impossible, the world will know who to blame.

'These Days'

THE COVER-UP

In a totalitarian state, the man who fails is exiled or killed. It is a swift method, always without due process of law. In a free society, it is not expected that honorable and competent men will never make mistakes, but the hope is that due regard for decency and a sense of loyalty will require them to admit error; that under such circumstances a man will resign from his position, giving his superior an opportunity to choose between letting the man go or giving him another chance. Under no circumstance is a cover-up tenable. The whole theory of our success is that courageous men were able to admit error without fear. The man who covered up was regarded as a coward. He was looked upon as a slick article who fixed things for himself, but left all the mess for someone else.

These ideas, like so many others which controlled the thinking of the God-fearing people who created our society, are today regarded as old-fashioned. In these days, everybody, particularly in government, is constantly covering up all sorts of mistakes. That is why we are in such trouble in Korea; that is why we have so few friends left in Europe and Asia. That is why the cost of government is so high; that is why we are beset by so many confusing problems.

Usually we think about specific acts which attract our attention, but occasionally we need to delve more deeply into the origins of the news so that we can think out our problems. There is no substitute for the truth. There is no substitute for a moral response to the challenges of the day.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt, one of the most ingenious politicians of our age, was faced by a public furor over the appointment of Senator Hugo Black to the Supreme Court Bench, he delivered his Quarantine Speech in Chicago which diverted attention from a political error to an international menace. The Quarantine Speech is tremendously important as an historic document because its recitation in Japan was immediate. The Japanese decided that the United States would ultimately go to war and that Japan would be a target. The course of events leading up to Pearl Harbor can now be documented right back to the Quarantine Speech; yet, factually it was not so intended. It was only a political device to take the public eye off the Black appointment.

When the Yalta Conference took place in secrecy, and errors were made for which we are now paying with the blood of our sons, public attention was diverted in all directions. Questions then asked about Yalta were not answered. The assumption was that it was all too secret; that the American people would not understand. From Yalta until today, all the consequences of that conference have been harmful to the United States and beneficial to Russia. And all the efforts of our government, no matter who is President, have been designed to cover up the mistakes, the reasons for the mistakes, the mistakes of the government. There has not been a sufficient change during the Eisenhower Administration to alter this attitude.

Dean Acheson expanded the State Department until it overshadowed the rest of the government. He acted almost as a Prime Minister. President Truman gave Dean Acheson a latitude which no Cabinet member has ever had in our government. None of his predecessors under President Roosevelt or his forerunners ever possessed authority over departments of government other than his own.

Dean Acheson filled the State Department with a combination of persons who owed to him a personal allegiance and most of whom still remain in the State Department, the International Information Administration, the CIA and other departments of government. For instance, William Putnam Bundy, Dean Acheson's son-in-law, is in the CIA. Recently, Senators were shocked to learn that it is the intention of the Administration to appoint Bundy liaison between the National Security Council and the Atomic Energy Commission, two of the most vital and most secretive agencies of government, not only because of his closeness to Dean Acheson but because of his contributions to the Alger Hiss defense fund.

Yet, a strong effort was made to cover up the Bundy appointment principally on the ground that no one should know anything about anyone who works for the CIA. If that position is tenable, as it well might be, then the CIA ought to be careful about whom it employs.

EMOTIONAL DISTURBANCES, OVERWEIGHT

No matter what the age of a woman, she will sacrifice much in denying herself food for the sake of her appearance whereas her health is a secondary matter. But a man gradually increasing in weight finds himself looking better as he becomes rounded out and loses some of his corners or angles. His friends tell him how well he looks and his mirror shows how full his face has become, but, unfortunately, does not, unless he turns sideways, show his protruding abdomen.

Eugene Fisk, the noted chief medical examiner of the corporation making yearly physical examinations for policy holders of life insurance companies, has been telling his physicians and the public generally that the average weight of the population at 30 years of age, with due regard to height, age, and build, is the ideal weight for life expectancy.

In "The Ontario Medical Review," Dr. F. S. Brien, Professor of Medicine, states that it would appear that from 25 to 30 per cent of the adult population is overweight. This constitutes one of the greatest problems in preventive medicine today. The studies of our nutrition research physicians have failed to show any abnormality in the obese individual that explains his fat; he simply gets fat because he overeats. This means that research workers must find why he overeats.

"Of the contributing factors to obesity," Dr. Brien writes, "much the most important lie in the psychological realm. Like alcoholism, overeating affords a convenient avenue of escape from various emotional disturbances. In such disorders (as sorrow, grief, anxiety, loneliness, frustration), excessive eating is often indulged in for the temporary solace it provides."

Dr. Brien does not believe that gland disturbances (thyroid, pituitary, adrenal, sex) are a frequent cause of obesity. What about heredity and overweight? There is no doubt that body build is inherited; but obesity is not inherited, it is acquired. As stated before, it is the habit of overeating, not obesity itself, that is inherited. This means that while an individual may inherit certain physical characteristics, he can't blame his parents so much for his overweight for the blame is on his own shoulders; he eats more food than he needs.

Getting Around This Bird Is the Real Problem

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA) — Shake-speare or somebody once said that consistency was a jewel. He might have added that it's rarer than most jewels when you find it among politicians.

Anyway, the furor resulting in the resignation of Dr. J. B. Matthews as chief of staff for Senator Joe McCarthy's investigating committee and the later resignation of the three Democratic members, has given Washington some prime examples of political inconsistency.

The bone of contention in this case was, of course, Dr. Matthews' article "Communism and our Churches." It was written before Dr. Matthews was appointed to the Senate committee staff by Senator McCarthy. The line that stirred up all the fuss was the statement that "at least 7,000" Protestant clergymen in the

In defending the Matthews appointment, Chairman McCarthy came up with a prime inconsistency of his own.

"I do not," said Senator Joe, "set myself up as a censor."

News for U. S. Librarians

This should be news to the people who run the overseas libraries for the State Department's U. S. Information Centers. In their opinion, Senator McCarthy has been doing a whale of a job of censoring many whole books right off their shelves for the past several months.

In further defending Dr. Matthews, Senator McCarthy emphasized that the article on the churches was written before the author had any intention of becoming a member of the committee staff.

"He was a free-lance writer," Senator McCarthy is quoted as saying, "projecting his own views and conclusions. What he wrote in the article did not represent the thinking of the committee. It had nothing to do with the committee."

Let that sink for a minute. Then recall the cases of Reed Harris and Theodore Kaghan, two former employees of the State Department's information staff, who were drummed out of government service after hearings before the McCarthy committee.

Kaghan, deputy chief of information in Germany, admitted before the McCarthy committee that in the 1930's he had written plays which were probably "acceptable to the Communists" though they did not follow the party line. This was nearly 10 years before Kaghan became a war-time government employee and before he had any intention of becoming a government employee. They did not represent the views of the government and they had nothing to do with the government.

Case of Reed Harris

The case of Reed Harris is similar. In 1931, at age 21, Harris wrote a book, "Football: The Vulgarization of the American College." In it, Harris defended the right of the Communists to teach. "I wrote it in three weeks and I have regretted it ever since," said Harris before the McCarthy committee in recounting his youthful views. He said he did not now believe in the right of Communists to teach.

This Harris book was written three years before he became a government employee for the first time. It did not represent government policy and it had nothing to do with government.

For the sake of consistency, then, the question is on what differences there are between the free-lance writings of Dr. Matthews and the free-lance writings of Harris and Kaghan. All were merely expressing their personal views of the time.

Dr. Matthews has led a varied and active life. Now 59, he was educated in theology and served as a Methodist missionary in Java.

In 1932 Dr. Matthews was a Socialist and a self-confessed Marxist, convinced of the necessity of a united front for all left-wing movements in the U. S. As late as 1935 he was still considered a left-winger, but shortly thereafter he changed his views again to become an anti-Communist and chief of the investigative staff of the original Dies committee.

He recanted his earlier views just as Kaghan and Harris did.

Anti-McCarthy Group Is Charged With Having Done Great Damage in Nation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, July 20—The anti-McCarthy strategists here can now survey the wreckage they have wrought in the last ten days. For never has there been as much harm done in so little time—and particularly in achieving the opposite of what was intended by them.

First and foremost is the damage done to the vast majority of Protestant clergymen in America—not by Senator McCarthy nor by his staff investigator, J. B. Matthews, but by those who gave nationwide publicity to a charge against the Protestant clergy as a whole which neither Mr. McCarthy nor Mr. Matthews had ever made.

Again and again articles of a highly slanderous nature have appeared in crusading magazines of small circulation but most of the time these are not picked up either by senators or by newspapermen to give much wider publicity to the charges made. Millions upon millions of readers a few days ago read for the first time news dispatches giving the impression that the whole Protestant clergy as an institution was under suspicion—and this never would have been the case if three Democratic senators, goaded by newspapermen here, had not seen fit to dignify the matter by dispute over an article that could readily have been ignored. There was precedent for such an attitude.

Thus, for example, within the last few years in the same magazine, but under different ownership, an article appeared which questioned the financial integrity of President Truman with a lot of alleged facts concerning his business operations before he took office. This correspondent's assertions upholding Mr. Truman's personal integrity were vehemently attacked. But none of the Republican senators, to their credit be it said, took up the controversy over the charges or made headline news out of those baseless allegations which every press association would then have been eager to carry. There was no "American for Republican action" in existence to insist on increasing the circulation of the charges against the character of a man in public office.

Today the "Americans for Democratic Action"—perhaps finding themselves without arguments to answer Senator McCarthy's arguments and preferring to attack the man rather than devote themselves to his charges about the integrity of the Communists in America—are circulating a pamphlet raising questions about the personal honesty of the Wisconsin senator in income-tax matters. The fact that three opposing senators signed the document of inuendo and character assassination which has been reprinted by the "Americans for Democratic Action"—a supposedly "liberal" organization—is no alibi for spreading slander. The original report is a compilation of questions raised in typical smear fashion but giving no answers in conclusion and no evidence on which impartial conclusions could be based.

As for McCarthy, lots of people feel about him as Churchill did about Stalin in 1941 and as many Americans feel about Tito and Franco—if they're allied on the same side in the fight against Communist imperialism their particular philosophies or "methods" are not as important as their energetic hostility to the common foe.

82,861 Jehovah's Witnesses Meet; 300 Hit by Heat

New York, July 20 (AP)—Heat felled more than 300 Jehovah's Witnesses yesterday as 82,861 members of the sect jammed Yankee Stadium for the opening of their eight-day new world society assembly.

At one time the heat inside the big Bronx stadium was 92 although the official heat reading outside was 81.

The heat prostration cases were treated in both grandstand and bleachers as well as at first aid emergency stations. None of the victims were reported in serious condition.

More thousands of Witnesses were expected to trek to the stadium today for the assembly's second day program which emphasizes the group's international scope. Delegates are here from 96 countries outside the United States.

Park Transformed

Yesterday's opening of the assembly presented a Yankee Stadium transformed from the home ball park of the traveling New York Yankees to a Kingdom Hall, the Jehovah's Witness term for a church. Flowers ringed the infield; and the pitching mound bloomed as a formal garden. A green-boughed speakers' platform was placed above second base. Vivid posters decked the green girders of the stands.

Members of the sect, known formally as the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, volunteered for various duties at the stadium and vicinity. Some were detailed to policing and handling traffic and cleaning duties. Others worked in huge kitchens set up to feed the members in tents near the stadium.

Jehovah's Witnesses believe in the literal truth of the Bible. Each member works as at least a part-time minister of the gospel.

Underworld Rent Figures

New York, July 20 (AP)—Latest quotations on the underworld rental market in Brooklyn: $25 rent for a gun worth no more than $45. $5 rent for a getaway car worth more than $1,000. Police said yesterday they got the figures from five men allegedly involved in a $7,119 payroll holdup. Among the five rounded up, police said, were men who rented the gun and the car to those who staged the holdup Friday.

The bidding was energetic in today's hand, but not unreasonable. North really should have had slightly greater strength for his free raise to three hearts, in which case South's game contract would have been easily fulfilled. As it was, South had his work cut out for him.

West opened the king of spades and continued with the queen and then the ace of spades. South ruffed the third round of spades and deliberated carefully about his next move.

The bidding made it clear that West had at least 10 cards in the black suits. Hence South could not expect either of the red suits to break reasonably. Moreover, West could not hold the ace of clubs since he had failed to open the bidding even though he had good distribution and a spade suit headed by the three top honors. On the basis of all this information, South was ready to proceed.

Declarer led the seven of hearts to dummy's queen and returned the jack of clubs towards his own hand. East put up the ace of clubs at once, it was obvious to him also that he was marked with this card, and returned a low trump.

South won with the ace of hearts, not wanting to risk an immediate finesse. When West showed out, the situation was, of course, clear.

South continued by taking the king and queen of diamonds and led a diamond to dummy's ace. As he had expected, the suit did not break. It was safe, however, to lead a club to the king, ruff his last diamond in dummy, and then lead from the dummy. With all hands reduced to two cards and the lead in the dummy, East's trumps were trapped underneath declarer's king-ten.

Mist Closes Skyway

Jersey City, N. J., July 20 (AP)—The Palisades Skyway was closed to all traffic for more than two hours early today when a clammy mist coated the road with a slippery glaze that caused a rash of minor accidents. State Highway Department trucks dumped ashes on the Skyway to get the road open at 5:30 a. m., before the morning rush hour started. Police at both ends of the big Skyway in Newark and Jersey City detoured cars away from entrance ramps until the ashes were spread on the road. The police said a slippery mixture of fog and dew was the cause of it all.

As Pegler Sees It

although it would take some time, we could make life at home so much more attractive that the exodus would stop and a return tide would set in. But the way of the paltry politician is to inflame them with cries that they are victims of persecution because they are poor and to promise them free money and luxurious housing.

Mr. Moses has been remodeling cities and creating highways, parks, airports, and bridges and forests for 30 years. He knows his rocks and rills and templed hills as well as he knows his laws and his rights and duties. He looks at a sick city and operates as a surgeon would on a patient. His record is not made up of the trashy moments of a letterhead societies promoting "brotherhood," but he can list honors which are earned only by great achievement. His work has taken him into banking, massive employment and housing problems, the actual science of government from the standpoint of the responsible official and areas of the realm of civic administration which the candidates in the field have never heard of.

His truculent honesty flares up in strange flashes.

One day a La Guardia, who had made an arbitrary rule not to name a place for a living person in order to avoid naming a drive in the name of a living person, MacArthur asked Moses to name a long strip of playground on the lower east side for Sara Delano Roosevelt.

"Why?"

"To honor the President," La Guardia said.

"But why? The park is named for the pre-Revolutionary Christie and Forsythe families. Christie street is on one side and Forsythe on the other."

"Will you recommend the name of Sara Delano Roosevelt?" La Guardia persisted.

"No."

"Will you oppose it?"

"No."

So the name of Sara Delano Roosevelt was formally adopted.

However, on the day before the dedication, Moses' secretary asked him if he would accept a collect phone call from Hyde Park. It was from Sara Delano Roosevelt.

"Put her on," said Moses and old Sara told him she had a cold and couldn't be present. This information cost the taxpayers of the city of New York 50 cents.

To this day there are no signs designating this public work "Sara Delano Roosevelt Park."

Long afterward Mr. Moses told why.

"I forgot to put them up," he said.

Convention Note: Woodstock Vols Check City Blaze

Anything can happen during a firemen's convention.

Returning from the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association parade Saturday afternoon, the Woodstock Fire Company pulled up in front of the Central Fire Station in Kingston to chat with the paid firemen on duty there.

At 4:28 p. m. an automobile driver stopped and informed firemen there was a grass fire burning on West O'Reilly street across from Wiltwyck Cemetery.

The Woodstock men pulled away, ostensibly to clear the way for Central Fire Station equipment to respond to the alarm. But when Kingston firemen arrived at the scene of the slight fire, they found the Woodstock apparatus with Chief George Haythorne and Mervin Doremus standing by. They had extinguished the fire with their booster line.

Russians Drop Claims

Istanbul, Turkey, July 20 (AP)—Russia, in an exchange of notes with Turkey, says she has "renounced previous territorial claims against her Balkan neighbor and 'reconsidered' earlier demands to share control of the strategic Dardanelles. The Turkish government replied Saturday that it "noted with satisfaction" the official Soviet declaration. The Soviet note was sent May 30 but not made public until yesterday. The Soviets in 1945 demanded a hand in running the Dardanelles, which links the Mediterranean and Black Sea. Russia also laid claim to the Turkish border areas of Kars, Ardahan and Artvin. Turkey rejected the demands.

Taunts Allied Troops

Seoul, July 20 (AP)—Frontline infantrymen reported a lone Chinese soldier ran out in front of the main allied line on the western Korean front last night and yelled "Syngman Rhee and Chad-Um-Mi same same." Chad-Um-Ni may have been a Korean or Chinese dialect translation of Chiang Kai-shek. Then the Chinese shouted: "You no blank good! You are short timers and stay in your trenches or you will be killed."

Cooler and Neater

New York, July 20 (AP)—Perspiring New York city postal employees can look forward to being cooler—but neater—this summer. An executive order yesterday by Acting Postmaster Harold Riegelman gives window clerks authorization to wear blue short-sleeved sport shirts, open at the neck, until Labor Day. The order also allows carriers to take over their ties when the temperature reaches 80 or more. Riegelman's order emphasized neatness, calling on superintendents to examine employees with an eye "to clean shaven appearance and to the condition of uniforms and shirts."

Five Die of Thirst

Cairo, July 20 (AP)—Reports reached Cairo today that a family of five, including three small children, died from thirst in the desert, 30 miles south of Aswan. Around the bodies were found three dead goats, a dead donkey and 12 empty water bottles.

82,861 Jehovah's Witnesses Meet; 300 Hit by Heat

New York, July 20 (AP)—Heat felled more than 300 Jehovah's Witnesses yesterday as 82,861 members of the sect jammed Yankee Stadium for the opening of their eight-day new world society assembly.

At one time the heat inside the big Bronx stadium was 92 although the official heat reading outside was 81.

The heat prostration cases were treated in both grandstand and bleachers as well as at first aid emergency stations. None of the victims were reported in serious condition.

More thousands of Witnesses were expected to trek to the stadium today for the assembly's second day program which emphasizes the group's international scope. Delegates are here from 96 countries outside the United States.

Park Transformed
Yesterday's opening of the assembly presented a Yankee Stadium transformed from the home ball park of the traveling New York Yankees to a Kingdom Hall,

the Jehovah's Witness term for a church. Flowers ringed the infield; and the pitching mound bloomed as a formal garden. A green-boughed speakers' platform was placed above second base. Vivid posters decked the green gardens of the stands.

Members of the sect, known formally as the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, volunteered for various duties at the stadium and vicinity. Some were detailed to policing and handling traffic and cleaning duties. Others worked in huge kitchens set up to feed the members in tents near the Stadium.

Jehovah's Witnesses believe in the literal truth of the Bible. Each member works as at least a part-time minister of the gospel.

Underworld Rent Figures
New York, July 20 (AP)—Latest quotations on the underworld rental market in Brooklyn: $25 rent for a gun worth no more than $45. $5 rent for a getaway car worth more than $1,000. Police said yesterday they got the figures from five men allegedly involved in a $7,119 payroll holdup.

Among the five rounded up, police said, were men who rented the gun and the car to those who staged the holdup Friday.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Player Has Time Making Contract

By OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service

The bidding was energetic in today's hand, but not unreasonable. North really should have had slightly greater strength for his free raise to three hearts, in which case South's game contract would have been easily fulfilled. As it was, South had his work cut out for him.

West opened the king of spades and continued with the queen and then the ace of spades. South ruffed the third round of spades and deliberated carefully about his next move.

The bidding made it clear that West had at least 10 cards in the black suits. Hence South could not expect either of the red suits to break reasonably. Moreover, West could not hold the ace of clubs since he had failed to open the bidding even though he had good distribution and a spade suit headed by the three top honors. On the basis of all this information, South was ready to proceed.

Declarer led the seven of hearts to dummy's queen and returned the jack of clubs towards his own hand. East put up the ace of clubs at once, it was obvious to him also that he was marked with this card, and returned a low trump.

Rest Periods Are Stressed at YMCA Day Camp Classes

The YMCA Day Camp at DeWitt Lake started the second half of the season this week with about 130 registrations. Since the weather has been ideal for swimming, more boys and girls will undoubtedly learn to swim this summer at camp than any previous summer, Lou Schafer, camp director, said today.

Schafer also said that one of the hardest times of the day is the rest period. "Youngsters do not want to rest but must since it is the camp rule. Programs are maintained to keep the activity down to a minimum during these periods. The rest lessens the chance of catching colds and other illnesses," he pointed out.

All camp leaders must pass their life saving work early in the spring but as a special precaution this season, the leaders will be given drills in life saving techniques and by Thursday each one will be given a test on life saving carries and artificial respiration. These skills may be lost without practice.

New Campers Arrive
New campers in the Junior Camp this week are Freddie Van Dusen, Terry Hanley, Carolyn Matson, Paul Pavlidis, Mary Ann Buananno, Robert Fishkin, Neil Miller, Stephanie and Susan LeFever, Eugene Smith and Ronald Smith.

DIVIDING THE PAYMENT

A wife writes: "I would like to know what you think is the best way to handle payment of a large bill under the following circumstances. We are ten couples who have been putting aside a small amount of money each week for an evening at a well-known supper club. We all have the same amount in the 'kitty,' which we figure should cover the price of dinner. However, there are some in the group who will undoubtedly have cocktails which, of course, will bring the bill up a good deal. Should the others in the group be expected to pay this additional expense? My husband is the 'banker' and would like to know the correct procedure to follow."

Your husband should pay the check for the dinner, and the check for the drinks should be paid by those who had them. This arrangement should have been understood and agreed to by all at the time the dinner was planned.

The Cost of a Stamp
Dear Mrs. Post: I am enclosing reply cards in the invitations to my wedding reception. The question has come up as to whether or not the return envelopes should include a stamp. Some of the members of my family think it would be very "cheap" not to do so. Will you please tell us what is correct?

Answer: The inference that the gift of 3 cents would in any way affect anyone's answer, is a very definite shock to me. I have never seen a stamp on such an enclosed envelope.

Notifying the Assembled Guests
Dear Mrs. Post: Due to circumstances beyond our control, we have found it necessary to change the plans of our daughter's wedding reception, which was to have been held in our home, to the chateau. Will you please tell us how we can notify our guests of this change? The invitations have already been sent out stating that the reception was to be at home.

Answer: Just before the professional announcement could be made that the reception would be held in the church parlors.

Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but if your question is about weddings, her booklet No. 501, "Etiquette of Weddings," includes helpful information on the ceremony, announcements and reception. To obtain a copy, send 25 cents in coin to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York, N. Y. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Leon S. Wormuth, 46 Pearl street, Sidney, served as his brother-in-law's best man. Herbert L. Wells of Schenectady and Daniel E. Purfield of West Shokan were the ushers.

A reception for 60 guests was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen D. Elwyn, Woodstock.

For the wedding trip to Lake George and Saranac Lake, Mrs. Weidner chose a periwinkle blue and white striped dress with a fitted jacket of periwinkle blue pique, lined and cuffed with the dress fabric, and white accessories. On their return the couple will make their home at Hickory Hill Farm in West Shokan.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School and a former employee of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

Mr. Weidner graduated from Kingston High School, served two years with the army-cavalry during World War 2. He is associated with Charles Weidner and Son, Hickory Hill Poultry Farm.

Rest Periods Are Stressed at YMCA
Day Camp Classes

The YMCA Day Camp at DeWitt Lake started the second half of the season this week with about 130 registrations. Since the weather has been ideal for swimming, more boys and girls will undoubtedly learn to swim this summer at camp than any previous summer, Lou Schafer, camp director, said today.

Schafer also said that one of the hardest times of the day is the rest period. "Youngsters do not want to rest but must since it is the camp rule. Programs are maintained to keep the activity down to a minimum during these periods. The rest lessens the chance of catching colds and other illnesses," he pointed out.

All camp leaders must pass their life saving work early in the spring but as a special precaution this season, the leaders will be given drills in life saving techniques and by Thursday each one will be given a test on life saving carries and artificial respiration. These skills may be lost without practice.

New Campers Arrive

All camp leaders in the Junior Camp this week are Freddie Van Deusen, Terry Hanley, Carolyn Matson, Paul Pavlidis, Mary Ann Buannano, Robert Fishkin, Neil Miller, Stephanie and Susan LeFever, Eugene Smith and Ronald Smith.

DIVIDING THE PAYMENT
A wife writes: "I would like to know what you think is the best way to handle payment of a large bill under the following circumstances. We are ten couples who have been putting aside a small amount of money each week for an evening at a well-known supper club. We all have the same amount in the 'kitty,' which we figure should cover the price of dinner. However, there are some in the group who will undoubtedly have cocktails which, of course, will bring the bill up a good deal. Should the others in the group be expected to pay this additional expense? My husband is the 'banker' and would like to know the correct procedure to follow."

Your husband should pay the check for the dinner, and the check for the drinks should be paid by those who had them. This arrangement should have been understood and agreed to by all at the time the dinner was planned.

The Cost of a Stamp
Dear Mrs. Post: I am enclosing reply cards in with the invitations to my wedding reception. The question has come up as to whether or not the return envelopes should include a stamp. Some of the members of my family think it would be very 'cheap' not to do so. Will you please tell us what is correct?

Answer: The inference that the gift of 3 cents would in any way affect anyone's answer, is a very definite shock to me. I have never seen a stamp on such an enclosed envelope.

Notifying the Assembled Guests

Dear Mrs. Post: Due to circumstances beyond our control, we have found it necessary to change the plans of our daughter's wedding reception, which was to have been held in our home, to the church parlors. Will you please tell us how we can notify our guests of this change? The invitations have already been sent out stating that the reception was to be at home.

Answer: Just before the processional the announcement could be made that the reception would be held in the church parlors.

Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but if your question is about weddings, her booklet No. 501, "Etiquette of Weddings," includes helpful information on the ceremony, announcements and reception. Physician, Wife
Found Dead; No
Verdict Rendered

New York, July 20 (AP)—A psychiatrist and his wife who died under unexplained circumstances were found sprawled across a double bed in their fashionable apartment last night.

The bodies of Dr. Felix E. Hoffman, 52, and his wife, Grace, 47, were discovered after an excited man, who did not identify himself, telephoned to police.

The caller said "somebody is sick here," and then hung up. Police traced the call to the Hoffman apartment at 120 Central Park south.

Autopsies Scheduled
Dr. Eugene Clark, an assistant medical examiner, declined to speculate on the cause of death. Autopsies were scheduled for today.

Detectives who found the bodies, fully clothed, said Mrs. Hoffman had been dead for several hours but her husband had been dead only a short time.

The detectives said the deaths appeared to be from natural causes, and there was no sign of violence or suicide. They speculated that Mrs. Hoffman may have died of a heart attack and that this induced her husband's death by a similar attack. This theory, police said, was fortified by a report from a brother of Hoffman that the physician had a weak heart.

Hoffman, who graduated from Long Island College of Medicine in 1926, maintained a general practice and recently became an assistant physician in the psychosomatic department of Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital.

Jamboree Notes

By RICHARD CONSTANT

July 16, 1953

They made it! The day was started with a breakfast stopover at Barstow, Calif. It was cooked and served to us by a local church ladies society. Also at Barstow a box lunch was loaded for the scouts. From there they journeyed to Santa Ana, the site of the Third National Boy Scout Jamboree. The boys arrived at the Jamboree grounds at 1 p. m.

Immediately upon arrival they started to set up the camp but due to many unforeseen delays, it was not completed the first night.

At 9 p. m. all of the Scouts proceeded to the sectional campfire. The opening ceremony was put on by Robert Shellenberger, Robert Sanford, Richard Constant, Leonard Sutton and Richard Stewart representing respectively a Pioneer, an Explorer, an Indian Chief, Kit Carson and an Old Timer.

Tomorrow the Jamboree officially opens.

July 17, 1953

The Jamboree at last!

Due to the anticipation on the part of the fellows for the Jamboree everybody was up bright and early. After breakfast, 8 a. m., they proceeded to Huntington Beach in Newport harbor. The swimming was shortened because the breakers were getting too large.

After lunch the boys went out and started exchanging their different items. Dennis Stewart and Peter Kelderhouse turned out to be a couple of veterans at trading and Thomas Elliott was the first one from this troop to get a horned toad from the Texans.

During the afternoon Irving Zwilling, Leslie Comstock, John Comstock, Robert Cousins and Fred Burnett were interviewed.

Immediately after supper the scouts went to the opening ceremony, led by the Region 2 band in which Robert Constant is a member. Larry Ross, singer, movie star, and scout, opened the program with some songs. This followed by speeches by President Eisenhower, Chief Scout Executive Schuck and the acting governor of California, Godwin Knight. After the speakers a pageant was enacted depicting the history of the United States' movement toward the west.

Two Stars Shade Jersey City Cardinals in 10 Innings, 3-2

B. Glaser's Deft Running Ends Stadium Thriller

They staged another wing-dinger at municipal stadium Saturday night with 286 fans looking on, as Bill Glaser pulled an Enos Slaughter to give the City League All Stars a thrilling 3-2 victory over the Jersey City Cardinals in 10 innings.

Glaser, who drove in the winning tally a week before to beat the Waterbury All Stars in 11 frames, drew a base on balls with two outs.

Les Barringer lined a solid single to center where the fielder juggled it momentarily. Never breaking stride, Glaser kept tearing toward home plate and made it standing up before the surprised Cardinal outfielder could recover his poise.

It was a play similar to the one in which Enos Slaughter wound up the Cardinal-Boston Red Sox series several years ago.

Another Poor Crowd
Despite ideal weather conditions, the turnout was disappointing and promoter Fred Davi and president Edward Murphy of the City League hinted there would be no further games for the time being.

For the second week in a row, the faithful saw an excellent ball game. Tommy Fisher and Zeke Klostermann went five innings apiece for Kingston, yielding five hits and a single run each. Each fanned three.

The Two Stars collected nine hits off Bill Brown, who pitched shutout ball until the 10th, after yielding a pair of runs in the second. He walked five and fanned six.

Fisher Starts
Fisher ran into early trouble, the Cardinals scoring with a double and single in the first but a fine throw by Eric Goercke to nail a runner at third helped ease the situation. A double by Collie Williams and Buckey Herron's single set the stage for Bob Cheeks' RBI fly to center. Goercke conceded the run but threw to third to catch the surprised Herron. Fisher permitted only one hit in the next four innings.

The Stars stacked four singles by Tom Murphy, Eric Goercke, Tommy Fisher and Augie Patsante — a walk, an error and stolen base to move ahead 2-1 in the second. Jersey City tied it at 2-2 in the sixth when cleanup hitter, Bob Cheeks, singled Herron home.

Jersey City collected at least one hit in four of the five frames off Klostermann's tenure but scored only in the sixth. Brown permitted only five hits over the last seven frames until Glaser and Barringer put on their act.

Herron Hits Three
Bucky Herron, Cardinal shortstop, stroked three singles and Cheeks hit a pair. Catcher Harry Kite had two singles for the Two Stars and George Glaser got a triple when his liner bounded past left fielder West with two outs in the sixth. Brown then fanned Fisher for the final out.

Fielding goal of the game was turned in by shortstop Tom Carlino, who made a leaping one-hand stab of Leon Diggs' scorching liner in the sixth. It was a vital play and broke the back of a potential big inning for the visitors.

Ferraro Victim Of Three Costly Errors by Mates

All Miscues Come In Same Inning

The American Legion Juniors have discovered the magic formula of winning a ball game while being no-hit by the opposing pitcher.

Big Jim Ferraro, who hurled Saturday's preliminary game at municipal stadium for the Kingston Clowns, didn't permit the Legion a hit and fanned four. But when the final returns were in, he was a beaten man, 3 to 2.

Ferraro merely had the misfortune of watching his defense collapse like papier mache in the second inning when the Legion scored three unearned runs. Bruce Bechtold and Jack Houghtaling, the curve ball whiz, shared the Legion pitching chores. Houghtaling worked the last two frames, fanned three and didn't allow a ball to be hit out of the infield.

Three Errors Hurt

The Clowns' collapsible defense. A walk and three errors allowed Shelghtner, Giannuzzi and Haber to cross the plate. Ferraro then retired the next 13 batters in a row and not a Legion player was to reach first base the rest of the way.

Clowns threatened Bechtold in the fifth when they scored their second run and had the bases loaded with two outs. The young righty, however, was equal to the occasion and fanned McClure for the third out.

Eric Goercke and Frank "Specs" Ebelheiser shared the four Clown safeties, the former hitting a double.

Previously featured three afternoons of the Dutchess county fair, the trotting and racing card this year will be squeezed into two stellar attractions.

The Western horse show, a feature that won popular favor last year, has been scheduled to last all day on Friday.

On Saturday, closing day, the English horse show is scheduled with all the colorful hunters, jumpers, and prize winning saddle horses and events.

Cookie Swift Defeats Mrs. Mortimer May 3-2 For State Golf Title

Hempstead, July 20 (P)—Roslyn Swift of Glen Oaks won the New York State golf title Saturday, defeating Mrs. Mortimer May of Middle Bay, 3 and 2, in a final round 36-hole tournament match.

Miss Swift had won the Metropolitan and Long Island championships within the past few weeks. The tournament at the Hempstead Golf Club course engaged most of the best women golfers in the state.

Mrs. May went to luncheon 1 up after the morning round of 18 holes, and she held this advantage for three holes in the afternoon. But once Miss Swift had got even at the 22nd, the fourth hole on the course, she never trailed again.

The Los Angeles Angels of the PCL paid its all-time record price for a player's contract when they gave $35,000 to Shreveport, La., at the end of the 1949 season for pitcher Fred Baczewski. He's now with the Redlegs.

In both races, the polished swimmer opened up a substantial lead over Donald Lawatsch of Kingston. Lionel Kogan of Kingston was third in the "50" and Ronald Rice of Kingston finished third in the long distance swim.

Kelder's crawl stroke and good flutter kick sent him to the head of the pack in both events and a few yards from the starting line there was no doubt about the eventual results.

Elaine Bernato of Kingston won the 35 yard feature for girls 12 and under. Bryan Keyes, a summer guest at DeWitt Lake, grabbed the boys counterpart.

Peter Ferraro of Kingston captured first place in the 50-yard event for boys 13 and 14 and Richard Herd, also of Kingston, won the 50-yard race for boys 15 and 16.

Twis Stars Shade Jersey City Cardinals in 10 Innings, 3-2

B. Glaser's Deft Running Ends Stadium Thriller

They staged another wing-dinger at municipal stadium Saturday night with 286 fans looking on, as Bill Glaser pulled an Enos Slaughter to give the City League All Stars a thrilling 3-2 victory over the Jersey City Cardinals in 10 innings.

Glaser, who drove in the winning tally a week before to beat the Waterbury All Stars in 11 frames, drew a base on balls with two outs.

Les Barringer lined a solid single to center where the fielder juggled it momentarily. Never breaking stride, Glaser kept tearing toward home plate and made it standing up before the surprised Cardinal outfielder could recover his poise.

It was a play similar to the one in which Enos Slaughter wound up the Cardinal-Boston Red Sox series several years ago.

Another Poor Crowd
Despite ideal weather conditions, the turnout was disappointing and promoter Fred Davi and president Edward Murphy of the City League hinted there would be no further games for the time being.

For the second week in a row, the faithful saw an excellent ball game. Tommy Fisher and Zeke Klosterman went five innings apiece for Kingston, yielding five hits and a single run each. Each fanned three.

The Twis Stars collected nine hits off Bill Brown, who pitched shutout ball until the 10th, after yielding a pair of runs in the second. He walked five and fanned six.

Fisher Starts
Fisher ran into early trouble, the Cardinals scoring with a double and single in the first but a fine throw by Eric Goerke to nail a runner at third helped ease the situation. A double by Collie Williams and Buckeye Herron's single set the stage for Bob Cheeks' RBI fly to center. Goerke conceded the run but threw to third to catch the surprised Herron. Fisher permitted only one hit in the next four innings.

The Stars stacked four singles by Tom Murphy, Eric Goerke, Tommy Fisher and Augie Passante—a walk, an error and stolen base to move ahead 2-1 in the second. Jersey City tied it at 2-2 in the sixth when cleanup hitter, Bob Cheeks, singled Herron home.

Jersey City collected at least one hit in four of the five frames off Klosterman's tenure but scored only in the sixth. Brown permitted only five hits over the last seven frames until Glaser and Barringer put on their act.

Herron Hits Three
Bucky Herron, Cardinal shortstop, stroked three singles and Cheeks hit a pair. Catcher Harry Kite had two singles for the Twis Stars and George Glaser got a triple when his liner bounded past left fielder West with two outs in the sixth. Brown then fanned Fisher for the final out.

Fielding gem of the game was turned in by shortstop Tom Canino, who made a leaping one-hand stab of Leon Diggs' scorching liner in the sixth. It was a vital play and broke the back of a potential big inning for the visitors.

Legion Shades Clowns, 3-2, Despite No Hitter

Ferraro Victim Of Three Costly Errors by Mates

All Miscues Come In Same Inning

The American Legion Juniors have discovered the magic formula of winning a ball game while being no-hit by the opposing pitcher.

Big Jim Ferraro, who hurled Saturday's preliminary game at municipal stadium for the Kingston Clowns, didn't permit the Legion a hit and fanned four. But when the final returns were in, he was a beaten man, 3 to 2.

Ferraro merely had the misfortune of watching his defense collapse like paper mache in the second inning when the Legion scored three unearned runs.

Bruce Bechtold and Jack Houghtaling, the curve ball whiz, shared the Legion pitching chores. Houghtaling worked the last two frames, fanned three and didn't allow a ball to be hit out of the infield.

Three Errors Hurt
The Clowns' collapsible defense. A walk and three errors allowed Sheltighner, Giannuzzi and Haber to cross the plate. Ferraro then retired the next 13 batters in a row and not a Legion player was to reach first base the rest of the way.

Clowns threatened Bechtold in the fifth when they scored their second run and had the bases loaded with two outs. The young righty, however, was equal to the occasion and fanned McClure for the third out.

Eric Goerke and Frank "Specs" Ebelheiser shared the four Clown safeties, the former hitting a double.

Lopat and Raschi Check White Sox in Key Games

Restore Yankee Lead to Six Sets

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Ed Lopat and Vic Raschi, a couple of seasoned veterans who count World Series as regular income, have straightened out the New York Yankees.

For the first time in weeks, there is no frantic patter of pursuit. Chicago, whipped twice yesterday, is six games back. Cleveland's disastrous collapse has dumped the Indians into fourth place, 11 games behind. Boston, working on a six-game winning streak, is third but still a distant 10½ games to the rear.

There is no change in the National League pattern after three split doubleheaders, with Brooklyn still holding a three-game lead over Milwaukee.

Big news of the day in the National was that somebody finally scored a run on Allan Worthington, the Giants' rookie hotshot. Milwaukee snapped the right-hander's scoreless string at 19½ innings and beat him 2-1 in the second game of a doubleheader, called after five innings because of darkness. New York had won the first game 7-5 on Hank Thompson's two-run homer in the ninth.

The story in the American League was the twin job the Yankees did on the White Sox 6-2 and 3-0 before 54,215, an all-time Comiskey Park record crowd.

Lopat Wins 10th
Lopat capped the first to boost his season record to 10-1 on an eight-hitter. Mickey Mantle's second double keyed a four-run rally in the ninth. Raschi held the Sox to two hits and Hank Bauer's second inning homer off Billy Pierce gave Vic all the lead he needed.

It could be the Yankees nailed down their fifth straight pennant by cooling off the Sox, who had won 29 of their last 35 games and eight straight before the clutch double.

The upstart Boston Red Sox rolled over Cleveland 2-0 and 7-5 to oust Cleveland from third place. Maury McDermott gave the Tribe only one hit in eight innings of the first game—Al Smith's single—and homered himself. When he threw two balls to the first hitter in the ninth, Ellis Kinder took over and finished the job in 1-2-3 order.

Ralph Branca, whose famous Brooklyn home run ball never will be forgotten, won his first American League game for Detroit 13-3 over Philadelphia. The Tigers and A's settled for an 8-8 tie in the second, called after 11 innings because of darkness.

Washington turned five walks and seven hits into 11 runs in the third and fourth innings to grab the second game from St. Louis 13-4 after dropping the first 5-4.

Brooklyn came from behind with five runs in the eighth and then stayed off a Cincinnati rally for a 7-5 victory and an even break with the troublesome Reds. Cincy won the first game 4-1 with Ted Kluszewski's 27th and 28th homers for a new Cincinnati team home run record of 112.

Errors Aid Dodgers
The Dodgers were helped by two costly throwing errors by Roy McMillan and Bobby Adams, in the second game's eighth inning.

Thompson's ninth-inning homer backed up Ruben Gomez for a

Giant decision over Milwaukee in the wild first game.

The bobtailed second game, in which the veteran Max Surkont won his 10th for Milwaukee with a fine two-hitter, goes into the record as an official game.

St. Louis won a game at Pittsburgh 8-2 and trailed 6-4 with one out in the Cardinal half of the sixth when the Pennsylvania curfew law intervened. That goes as a "suspended game" to be completed from the point of interruption before today's single game.

Philadelphia came up with three in the ninth to top the Chicago Cubs 6-5 after losing the opener 5-3 on home runs by Dee Fondy and Hal Jeffcoat.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)
Batting—Ted Kluszewski, Cincinnati Reds—hit 27th and 28th home runs to tie Milwaukee's Ed Mathews for major league lead in 4-1 first game victory over Brooklyn, and drove in a run in 7-5 second game defeat.

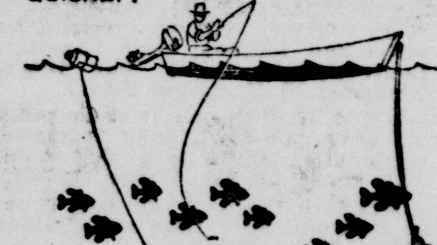

Pitching—Vic Raschi, New York Yankees—shut out Chicago with two hits in second game of doubleheader, 3-0, to boost Yankees' lead to six games.

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

It was just as well that Ben Hogan got out of Scotland when he did, Harry Grayson quips. The greatest precision golfer who ever lived would have destroyed more illusions had the British Open lasted another day.

Hogan's spectacular triumph in his first shot at the British Open was the most electrifying sports achievement of this most barren age of sports in American history.

In these days when Mickey Mantle, batting cleanup for the American League All Stars, leads off an inning with an attempted bunt against the Nationals and boxing is proselytized for the sale of razor blades and beer suds, Hogan stands out as America's greatest post-war athlete.

When baseball magnates fight a losing battle to lure jaded patrons in their ball parks and football makes a 100-man production of a game designed for 22, Hogan is the one man who could electrify the world in quest of a sports title.

Ben Hogan may not be the greatest golfer of all time, but he is the only athlete alive who can fire the imagination of the whole country. Nobody in baseball can do it, not since Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams left the scene.

Nobody can safely say that Hogan is a better golfer than Bobby Jones, the yardstick by which all golf greats are measured. Jones won 13 major titles as an amateur and quit at the top of his career when he achieved a crashing climax, physically and emotionally. Nobody knows how many more crowns he might have bagged had he continued.

But this we do know . . . he could never take a golf course apart like Hogan does. The dour Texan had just gotten the feel of things when the show ended at Carnoustie.

Breaking the course record, finishing the final round with three 3s, winning his fourth U. S. Open in six years, Hogan alone had Pittsburgh's "impossible" Oakmont figured out. Hogan was properly prepared at Carnoustie after a two-weeks "casing" of the course and the British Open, like the rest, became almost incidental.

"Hogan opened his 10-day preparation for his assault on the British Open with a 2-hour workout on the practice grounds," writes Arthur Lacey, who captained the British Ryder Cup team of 1951. "He scored more bullseyes than military marksmen on a nearby rifle range. His tall English caddy, Cecil Timms, often had to do no more than reach out a hand to trap the ball."

"He took to the British ball like a duck to water," says Lacey. "He found that it travelled like a bullet, went much farther than the American model. He likes the way it hugged the greens for putting. He had only one slight worry. He found he could hit it such a long way he had difficulty in judging the range for choice between 2 and 3 irons."

Hogan marvelled to find the Carnoustie fairways much wider and the green approaches much less lightly trapped than he was accustomed to on U. S. championship courses. In his first "casing" of the famed Carnoustie, from tiger tees stretching the sand-dune terrain officially to 7200 yards (Hogan's estimate—nearer 7400) the sun-tanned Texan with the stroke of death shot a 69 to tie the course record. That was by way of serving advance notice of the record 68 which was to close out the championship in a typical Hogan cyclonic finish.

On lush, lightly-contoured greens, Hogan birdied three of the first five holes. "Fortunately for the reputation and peace of mind of Carnoustie, his putter then became more respectful of its surroundings," Lacey reported.

A fresh breeze put the longest hole, the sixth, close to 600 yards, within two-shot range. But five holes required brassie approaches. Highly-impressed spectators saw Ben finish 3-4, both birdies, serenely carrying the tortuous windings of dreaded Barry Burns as though it did not exist.

Hogan had cased the joint. After a bit of brushing up, the best was to be little more than routine. You rig up the course and Ben Hogan will match it. If he doesn't dismantle it.

Mele Stopped

Chicago, July 20 (AP)—Outfielder Sam Mele of the Chicago White Sox ran his consecutive hitting streak to 22 games in the opener of the Yanks-Sox twin bill yesterday for the highest of the year in the American League. However, after lacing out a single, triple and homer in the first game, Mele went hitless in the nightcap. The previous high was 21 games by Dale Mitchell of the Cleveland Indians.

Novelist Is Wed

London, July 20 (AP)—J. B. Priestley, British novelist and playwright, announced today he will marry Mrs. Maquettea Hawkes, 42-year-old broadcaster, on Thursday. Mrs. Hawkes' husband, a professor at Oxford University, won a divorce from her last month. He charged she committed adultery with Priestley. The writer, 59, was divorced by his second wife last year. His first wife died in 1925.

Replacements Arrive

Singapore, July 20 (AP)—A thousand British troops arrived here today from Britain aboard the troopship Empire Halladale. Most of the men are replacements for regiments fighting the Communist guerrillas in Malaya.

Car Leaves Road, Plunges Into Muck

Brunswick, Ga., July 20 (AP)—A vacation journey became a nightmare for a New York family when their automobile plunged upside down yesterday into salt marshes along U. S. highway 17.

Black muck oozed into the overturned car and the six occupants broke windows to escape. They were coated with the heavy mud and an ambulance driver likened their appearance to "A-bomb victims."

Johnna Lucetti, 9, suffered leg lacerations requiring 57 stitches. She was cut when pushed through a jagged window by her frantic parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gino F. Lucetti, (182 Wellington Road), Long Island City, N. Y.

Mrs. Lucetti's father, John K. Jasiecki, 62, of Brooklyn, received a broken toe and lacerations on his face.

Other members of the family were released after treatment for minor injuries. They included Jasiecki's wife and a son of the Lucettis.

Mrs. Lucetti was driving on a rain-swept, bumpy section of the highway when she lost control of the car, police said.

Termites ordinarily attack only dead or dying wood.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

It was just as well that Ben Hogan got out of Scotland when he did, Harry Grayson quips. The greatest precision golfer who ever lived would have destroyed more illusions had the British Open lasted another day.

Hogan's spectacular triumph in his first shot at the British Open was the most electrifying sports achievement of this most barren age of sports in American history.

In these days when Mickey Mantle, batting cleanup for the American League All Stars, leads off an inning with an attempted bunt against the Nationals and boxing is proselytized for the sale of razor blades and beer suds, Hogan stands out as America's greatest post-war athlete.

When baseball magnates fight a losing battle to lure jaded patrons in their ball parks and football makes a 100-man production of a game designed for 22, Hogan is the one man who could electrify the world in quest of a sports title.

Ben Hogan may not be the greatest golfer of all time, but he is the only athlete alive who can fire the imagination of the whole country. Nobody in baseball can do it, not since Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams left the scene.

Nobody can safely say that Hogan is a better golfer than Bobby Jones, the yardstick by which all golf greats are measured. Jones won 13 major titles as an amateur and quit at the top of his career when he achieved a crashing climax, physically and emotionally. Nobody knows how many more crowns he might have bagged had he continued.

But this we do know . . . he could never take a golf course apart like Hogan does. The dour Texan had just gotten the feel of things when the show ended at Carnoustie.

Breaking the course record, finishing the final round with three 3s, winning his fourth U. S. Open in six years, Hogan alone had Pittsburgh's "impossible" Oakmont figured out. Hogan was properly prepared at Carnoustie after a two-weeks "casing" of the course and the British Open, like the rest, became almost incidental.

Hogan opened his 10-day preparation for his assault on the British Open with a 2-hour workout on the practice grounds," writes Arthur Lacey, who captained the British Ryder Cup team of 1951. "He scored more bullseyes than military marksmen on a nearby rifle range. His tall English caddie, Cecil Timms, often had to do no more than reach out a hand to trap the ball."

"He took to the British ball like a duck to water," says Lacey. "He found that it traveled like a bullet, went much farther than the American model. He likes the way it hugged the greens for putting. He had only one slight worry. He found he could hit it such a long way he had difficulty in judging the range for choice between 2 and 3 irons."

Hogan marvelled to find the Carnoustie fairways much wider and the green approaches much less lightly trapped than he was accustomed to on U. S. championship courses. In his first "casing" of the famed Carnoustie, from tiger tees stretching the sand-dune terrain officially to 7200 yards (Hogan's estimate—nearer 7400) the sun-tanned Texan with the stroke of death shot a 69 to tie the course record. That was by way of serving advance notice of the record 68 which was to close out the championship in a typical Hogan cyclonic finish.

On lush, lightly-contoured greens, Hogan birdied three of the first five holes. "Fortunately for the reputation and peace of mind of Carnoustie, his putter then became more respectful of its surroundings," Lacey reported.

A fresh breeze put the longest hole, the sixth, close to 600 yards, within two-shot range. But five holes required brassie approaches. Highly-impressed spectators saw Ben finish 8-4, both birdies, serenely carrying the tortuous windings of dreaded Barry Burns as though it did not exist.

Hogan had cased the joint. After a bit of brushing up, the rest was to be little more than routine. You rig up the course and Ben Hogan will match it. If he doesn't dismantle it.

Mele Stopped

Chicago, July 20 (AP)—Outfielder Sam Mele of the Chicago White Sox ran his consecutive hitting streak to 22 games in the opener of the Yanks-Sox twin bill yesterday for the highest of the year in the American League. However, after lacing out a single, triple and homer in the first game, Mele went hitless in the nightcap. The previous high was 21 games by Dale Mitchell of the Cleveland Indians.

Novelist Is Wed

London, July 20 (AP)—J. B. Priestley, British novelist and playwright, announced today he will marry Mrs. Macquetta Hawkes, 42-year-old broadcaster, on Thursday. Mrs. Hawkes' husband, a professor at Oxford University, won a divorce from her last month. He charged she committed adultery with Priestley. The writer, 59, was divorced by his second wife last year. His first wife died in 1925.

Car Leaves Road, Plunges Into Muck

Brunswick, Ga., July 20 (AP)—A vacation journey became a nightmare for a New York family when their automobile plunged upside down yesterday into salt marshes along U. S. highway 17.

Black muck oozed into the overturned car and the six occupants broke windows to escape. They were coated with the heavy mud and an ambulance driver likened their appearance to "A-bomb victims."

Johnna Lucetti, 9, suffered leg lacerations requiring 37 stitches. She was cut when pushed through a jagged window by her frantic parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gino F. Lucetti, 182 Wellington Road, Long Island City, N. Y.

Mrs. Lucetti's father, John K. Jasiechi, 62, of Brooklyn, received a broken toe and lacerations on his face.

Other members of the family were released after treatment for minor injuries. They included Jasiechi's wife and a son of the Lucettis.

Mrs. Lucetti was driving on a rain-swept, bumpy section of the highway when she lost control of the car, police said.

Termites ordinarily attack only dead or dying wood.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, Jr.

Three Books Due
By Free Lancer
Who Operates Inn

Woodstock, July 18—Paul W. Kearney, who with his wife, Clare Kearney, operates the Watson Hollow Inn, West Shokan, also is a free lance writer who is enjoying the unique experience of having three of his books published this summer. Mr. and Mrs. Kearney are frequent visitors in Woodstock.

The first to appear was a text on driving, "Drive Better and Avoid Accidents," published by Thomas Y. Crowell Company, New York. Released on May 18, Kearney was interviewed by Mary Margaret McBride on her program that day over the WABC network from New York. With a foreword by Ned Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council, the book has met with a warm reception in safety education circles: a week after its appearance the army bought 1,000 copies for its key driving instructors.

On July 8, the second book, "Disaster On Your Doorstep," was released by Harper & Brothers. Again the author was on the Mary Margaret McBride program on publication day, this time by transcription from West Shokan, where Miss McBride is vacationing.

"Disaster On Your Doorstep" is the graphic story of "the fires that hurt"—the serious outbreaks in schools, hospitals, hotels and industrial occupancies which account for the bulk of our national fire losses, and which hit every pocketbook, be it fat or lean. Local readers will find special interest in an exciting chapter on fires in the woods, as well as in another which outlines a thoroughly realistic approach to the menace of the dwelling blaze which accounts for 75 per cent of our fire fatalities. Extracts from this volume, to be published by United Features Syndicate in various newspapers throughout the country.

Third in September Kearney's third volume, which will be released in September, is called "Free Lance Writing for a Living," published by David McKay Company. Having sold well over 1,000 articles as a free lance to virtually every leading magazine in the country, the author's approach to his subject is far from academic. Four current examples of his magazine work, incidentally, will be seen in the August and September issues of Reader's Digest, Coronet and Pageant. The first of these, dealing with the Miami Fire Department and its unique use of breathing apparatus
